Victoria Pays Tribute to Cliff

WORLD'S TALLEST TOTEM IN TODAY'S WEEKEND

The photo, by Victoria's David Rogers, accompanies an article by Stephen Franklin and an outline of the legend which the Mungo Martin carving commemorates.

U.K. Turns Down Red Suez Plan

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today rejected Russia's proposal for a second and broader Suez conference on grounds that "the urgency of the crisis" would not permit it.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd appealed instead to the 22-nation Suez conference here to agree on a set of principles for future operations of the Suez Canal and convey them speedily to the Egyptian government.

The conference, now in its third day, then adjourned until Monday afternoon.

This left the weekend clear for further backstage diplomatic talks. The delegates are trying to hammer-out a compromise between the West's insistence on international management for the canal and Russia's call for a new international guarantee but leaving the waterway in Egyptian hands.

Lloyd told the conference that Britain wants a peaceful settlement of the dispute despite British military preparations.

Lloyd made it clear that Britain fully backs the four-point plan for the future operation of the canal advanced Thursday by State Secretary Dulles.

The foreign secretary's speech appeared soft in tone and free from the bitterness of previous British denunciations of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

CAIRO (UP)—Egypt plans to recruit "resistance battalions," possibly including foreign "volunteers," in every one of its cities and towns.

The newspaper Al Ahram reported that 4,500 recruiting offices have been opened throughout the country.

Bad Weather For British Soccer Start

LONDON (Reuters)—Torrential rain, strong winds and upsets provided a stormy opening to the new English soccer season today.

Hopes of a bright start were shattered for many clubs in the north of England as players slithered on sodden fields in lashing rain. Some teams were in their element, especially newly-promoted Leeds United and Sheffield Wednesday.

Both made a fine start on their return to the first division. Leeds won 5-1 against Everton. Centre forward Harold Brooks scored three goals in the first half.

Sheffield Wednesday came through a testing debut by winning 4-2 against powerful West Bromwich Albion.

Manchester United, the league champions and unbeaten at home last season, received a minor setback today. Birmingham, defeated in last season's cup finals, held United to a 2-2 tie although Manchester led 1-0 at halftime.

CROWD HAILS STRAIT CHAMP

Victoria's current hero, Cliff Lumsdon, who beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca Thursday and Friday, was acclaimed at City Hall today in the manner befitting a hero. Cliff spoke in the council chambers and received a clock from the Chamber of Commerce. With a cheering crowd in the background, Cliff and coach Gus Ryder enter City Hall, flanked on the left by City Clerk Frank Hunter and Acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold and on the right by Mrs. Lumsdon. Over 1,000 Victorians were at City Hall to greet Cliff.

MEDICAL CHECK SHOWS LUMSDON IN FINE SHAPE

Cliff Lumsdon got virtually a clean bill of health today, following a physical check-up by Dr. R. J. Wride.

Dr. Wride found that Lumsdon's only ailment following his 11½-hour Juan de Fuca Strait swim was an inflamed muscle sheath in his left wrist.

The wrist was bound up and Dr. Wride assured Lumsdon it would be healed in plenty of time for him to compete in Lake Ontario's CNE swim later in this month.

700 NAMES TAKEN

Vancouver Police Raid Bingo Game

From CP and BUP VANCOUVER—Police said today organizers of a big bingo game, raided Friday night by a squad of nine officers, are to be summoned for keeping a gaming house.

However, no charges are to be laid against the players. Police took down names of the 700 participants for nearly two hours after raiding the club on East Pender Street. Money and bingo equipment were confiscated.

Police gave no indication as to why the club was singled out for the raid, the first strike in years against the game which flourishes throughout the city.

Bingo is illegal under the Criminal Code unless staged by charitable or religious organizations with proceeds used for benefit of any charitable or religious organization.

Five detectives and two uniform policemen walked in on the game. They were led by Inspector Archie Plummer and Detective Sergeant Ben Coulter.

Police said a large quantity of bingo equipment was seized.

Mr. Allistone said in an interview following the meeting he is giving "serious consideration" to running as an Independent in Point Grey.

It is the second time "machine" charges have followed Social Credit nomination conventions in the Greater Vancouver area.

Last week MLA George Tomlinson of North Vancouver claimed that a machine was responsible for his defeat in his bid for renomination in North Shore riding.

In his nomination speech Mr. Allistone said he was in "full support" of the two sitting members — Attorney-General Bonner and Mr. Bate—but he urged the 148 eligible voters to "weigh carefully" their choice of the third candidate.

Second Socred Blames 'Machine'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges that a political machine was in operation in the association followed nomination of three Social Credit candidates in Vancouver-Point Grey Friday night.

Named on the first ballot were Attorney-General Robert Bonner, MLA Tom Bate and former Conservative Mrs. Buda Brown, a city park commissioner.

They defeated four other candidates, including long-time Social Creditor Ernest Allistone, a former president of the Point Grey constituency association, who levelled the "machine" charges.

Mr. Allistone said in an interview following the meeting he is giving "serious consideration" to running as an Independent in Point Grey.

Swimmer Honored By Civic Officials

By DENNY BOYD

Cliff Lumsdon, already hailed as one of the greatest swimmers in the world, today showed another facet of his multi-talented personality.

Speaking informally and without the help of notes, Lumsdon charmed and captivated members of the city council and guests today when he appeared in the council chambers of City Hall to receive civic recognition of his Victoria-Port Angeles swim Friday.

More than 1,000 persons welcomed Lumsdon outside City Hall.

Introduced in the council chambers by acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold, Lumsdon, wearing a dark blue suit, rose and with his hands in his pockets, spoke off-the-cuff for 10 minutes.

He said, "I have a lot of thanking to do."

"First, I want to thank God for giving me the strength and courage to complete my swim."

"Secondly, I want to thank Gus Ryder who, to me, is the greatest coach in the world. I have had Gus for a coach since I was five years and I might say, he has never let me down."

In fact, he has saved me a couple of times. I would never have been able to do any of my swims without Gus."

"Then, I want to thank the greatest navigator in the world, Capt. Ellice Cavin of Island Tug & Barge. Capt. Cavin is more than just a great navigator; he is a great man."

"I want to thank Jack Todd for handling the coaching boat all the way across the Strait. He had a hard job to do but he did it well."

"If I can ever find that dog that met me on the other side, I want to thank him or her for being there and giving me the strength to finish that last couple of hundred yards."

"And now, I want to thank the people of Victoria. I am sorry that I have to leave tomorrow but if I ever get the chance of coming back to this wonderful little city, you may be sure that I will."

"When I climbed up on that beach at Port Angeles, I was hoping that some southern fellow would come to me and say, 'Where are you from?' I was going to say, 'Man, I'm from Canada.'"

Lumsdon was presented with an ornamental glass and brass 1,000-day clock by G. F. (Pat) Dunn, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

On the clock is an engraved plate reading, "To Cliff Lumsdon, first to swim north to south across Strait between Victoria and Port Angeles, August 17, 1956. Presented by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce."

Acting Mayor Pinfold and City Clerk Frank Hunter greeted the party at the steps and escorted them into the council chambers.

Mr. Pinfold said that it was regrettable that the time element prevented Cliff from attending a civic dinner and promised that a "lasting and tangible gift" would be forthcoming in the near future to reward Cliff for his swim.

Mr. Pinfold said: "Your exploit is not only one of achievement but also one of record that will at all times be remembered with enthusiasm by the people of this community. I, with others here, followed your progress across the Straits by means of radio and marvelled at the endurance and stamina which you displayed. These characteristics will unquestionably be an example to not only other swimmers but to the youth of our country."

Introducing coach Ryder, Mr. Pinfold said, "We would like at this time to add our sincere best wishes to you for your future endeavors and our thanks for the material contribution that you have made for the safety and welfare of young Canadians."

Ryder paid special tribute to his wife for her work with swimmers and spoke on the hysterical reporting that followed Marilyn Bell's swim.

It is hoped that Cliff will be able to attend a band concert at Beacon Hill Park Sunday afternoon at 3.

He leaves at 8 Sunday night for Toronto, where he will start training for the CNE swim in Lake Ontario, Aug. 26.

Gift Worth 'More Than Anything'

Lumsdon thanked Mr. Dunn and said, "This gift was more to me than anything in the world."

"Then he added with a smile, 'Maybe I'll take it along with me on my next swim.'"

Amy Near Goal; Ben 4 Miles Out

Blonde California housewife Amy Hiland was fighting her way through the turbulent waters off Race Rocks at 12.30 p.m. today in a valiant attempt to hit the Canadian shore near Victoria after entering the water at Ediz Hook at Port Angeles at 4.45 a.m.

About three miles behind her was Victoria's Ben Laughren who also dived into the water from the hook at 4.55 a.m.

Amy was only about three-quarters of a mile off Becher Bay in Sooke at press time, endeavoring to fight her way towards Victoria.

She was in the section D-6 in the Times swim map and Ben in section D-8.

Amy's last strong attempt to beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca was Aug. 2 when she came within three miles of the Ogden Point breakwater after 12 hours and two minutes, 13 minutes short of her electrifying attempt three weeks earlier when she got within one mile of Victoria.

STORK LANDS TRIPLETS AT PENTICTON HOME

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—The stork carried a capacity load here Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young.

In hospital, Mrs. Young gave birth to a five-pound, two-ounce girl at 2:20 p.m., a three-pound, 10-ounce girl at 6:26 p.m. and settled for triplets at 7:01 p.m., with another girl weighing five pounds, 14½ ounces.

The young family now totals four girls. There is a two-year-old daughter, Dianna.

Mr. Young said Friday night both mother and triplets were "doing fine." He said they haven't chosen names for them.

Local Centennial Body Established

Are Municipalities To Be Asked To Give Committee Authorization?

A committee to plan Greater Victoria's celebration of British Columbia's 100th birthday in 1958 was established Friday afternoon.

All municipalities in this area will be asked to draw uniform by-laws establishing the local B.C. centennial committee as co-ordinator of celebrations and manager of funds granted for the anniversary by the provincial government.

The committee elected Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood chairman, and requested city manager C. C. Wyatt to recommend a full-time secretary after Ald. Edgewood outlined extensive work ahead of the group.

Municipalities would have voting members on the committee, picked on the basis of population as for the library board—one member from each municipality, plus one for each 25,000 population or fraction thereof.

Victoria would have four members, Saanich three and two each from Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Ald. Edgewood's idea would be to draw non-voting members from any service club or other organization which could play a part in the celebration.

Annual celebrations are already planned by Greater Victoria Celebrations Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which could be coordinated with centennial celebrations into a "week-long excellent affair," said Ald. Edgewood.

Any local aspect of the centennial period could be emphasized by the municipality concerned, the committee agreed.

Oak Bay was not able to send a representative to the initial meeting.

Mayor Percy Scurrell was asked by acting mayor Ald. W. F. Plinford to invite the 1958 convention of Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to Victoria.

Premier Bennett and the B.C. Centennial Committee have sent their endorsements to the mayor, now at the mayor's 1958 convention in Hamilton.

Auto Workers' Vote Strike Approved

Victoria Automotive Workers' Union has been granted its application for a strike vote among some 250 members employed by 10 Victoria automotive dealers.

Membership voted this week to reject recommendation of a conciliation report following recent hearings.

The report recommended a two-year contract providing $1.96 this year and $2 an hour next year for journeymen mechanics. Starting date in 1957 would be May 1.

A union spokesman said date for taking a strike vote will be announced by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin, probably next week.

Union demand was for a 40-hour week with the same take-home pay as for the present 44 hours, on a basic journeyman mechanic's rate of $1.78½ an hour, plus union shop.

BEDALE, Eng. (AP)—Dante, who won the Epsom Derby in 1945 and later sired winners of races worth $524,563, died of a heart attack Friday. He was 14 years old.

Portage Inlet Seen as Huge Yacht Basin

Engineering Report Backs Plans To Build Canal, Dam and Locks

Portage Inlet could be the finest natural yacht basin in the northwest, the headquarters for hundreds of cruising craft, if connected by canal and locks with Esquimalt and Victoria Harbors.

Results of Portage Inlet development are envisioned by Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, who received a report lauding improvement through engineering from the firm R. Gordon Knight and Associates, consultant engineers, Vancouver.

The inlet, already a safe anchorage but difficult to reach by larger sailing craft or motor cruisers, could provide revenue to cover the estimated $1,000,000-plus needed to build a canal from Thetis Cove on Esquimalt

Harbor and a set of dam and locks on the cove and at the foot of Harriet on the Gorge.

Ald. Edgewood said toll fees could be charged to vessels using the locks and after a number of years the project would pay for itself.

Early requirement is for a full field survey to establish final design and cost.

The alderman said such a survey, which he estimated at $10,000, might be paid for by Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt on a per capita basis.

Natural Recreation Area

"It's a natural," the alderman said, "apart from it becoming a recreational area (small boating, picnic and beach facilities would improve), if this is done it will make the upper Portage Inlet into a yacht basin which could become the headquarters of yachting for the entire north Pacific coast."

He said the inlet could develop into a storage basin for yachts in the Pacific northwest. About 2½ or three months would be required to complete a full survey of the project, Ald. Edgewood estimated.

Esquimalt council has already urged Capital Improvement District Commission funds be used to finance the survey. It approved a Victoria city council request that endorsement be given to Gorge waterway improvement as a CID project.

Asked his opinion of the plan, Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash said, "I think it is a wonderful idea." It has not as yet had the opportunity to examine the proposals in detail.

Ald. Edgewood said Gorge waterway would endeavor to get the co-operation of unorganized provincial territory bordering on Portage Inlet to overcome the situation of septic tank drainage into the waters. All other sewage problems have been overcome with regard to the Inlet and the Gorge, making safe swimming for the first time in 18 years.

To complete the task of pollution prevention the engineers' report said circulation would be improved by cutting a canal linking Victoria and Esquimalt Harbors, "thereby providing better recreational facilities for residents of the Greater Victoria district."

CAPT. CAVIN CORRECTS VIEW ON REPEAT SWIM

When Capt. Ellice Cavin, Cliff Lumsdon's navigator aboard the Island Challenger, said Friday "I doubt that it will ever be done again," he meant a north-south Strait crossing would never happen under such ideal circumstances.

"I did not say the Strait would never be swum again," as was implied following Lumsdon's history-making marathon, he said today.

Any future successful crossing will have to contend with complicated navigational problems, the veteran skipper believes.

SPINNING HARRIS TWEED

Scots Cottage Housewife Entertains Royal Couple

OBAN, Scotland (Reuters)—The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret gathered around a peat fire in a little Scots cottage Friday to watch a grey-haired islander handspin the yarn for Harris tweed.

The Queen sat in the only armchair. Princess Margaret used a small straight-back chair and the Duke sat on the table in the homely parlor while Mrs. Peggy MacDonald, fisherman's wife, produced the valuable yarn from her old-fashioned spinning wheel.

Then at the Queen's request they trooped outside to see the age-old traditional ritual of dyeing the Highland tweed in a big black cauldron of vegetable coloring bubbling over a peat fire.

Ingredients in the brew included heather, bogmyrtle, glove and lichen.

The Duke took the Queen and Margaret on a 40-mile drive through lanes and over long stretches of wild desolate moorland in a little car. For many miles they saw nobody.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

BY DINAH KERR
and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: "Do you think Adlai Stevenson has a chance to be president?"

R. Ouellette, HMCS Jonquiere: Yes, he has a good chance. I'd vote for Stevenson if I lived in the United States. I was glad to see him get the nomination.

Ouellette Bell

Marjorie Bell, Portland, Ore.: I don't think he has a very good chance. I'd vote for Eisenhower because he's proved himself in office. I come from a Republican state.

William O'Dair, Salt Lake City, Utah: "Stevenson has no chance, at all. Eisenhower is far more popular with the people. I'm voting Republican."

O'Dair Addison

H. Addison, retired, Station Road, Langford: "According to what I've read, Stevenson won't become president, at least not this time. I think Eisenhower will take him again."

Mrs. William Morrison, 638 Ralph street: "I haven't really taken much interest in the nominating convention. I've had so many visitors this summer, I haven't had a chance to read the papers."

Morrison Almond

Norman Almond, Philadelphia: "Yes, I think Stevenson has a good chance, mainly because of Eisenhower's health and the fact that he has a weak running partner. Stevenson should be able to swing it."

Voters Cut Off Deliberately Says Snowsell

'Disenfranchisement by Design' Says CCFer of 'Snap' Election

Premier Bennett's snap election, "is a deliberate attempt to disenfranchise many eligible voters in this province," declared former CCF MLA Frank Snowsell when he was nominated as CCF candidate for Saanich Friday night.

Mr. Snowsell received a majority vote at a meeting in the Douglas street CCF hall after B. H. Johns and J. W. Windsor withdrew in his favor.

At other nomination meetings Friday night:

H. J. Bruch, Social Credit member for Esquimalt, was re-nominated by acclamation at a meeting in Colwood Hall.

John Tisdale, Saanich Social Credit member, won a majority on the first ballot from a crowded meeting at the Lake Hill Hall, defeating J. Whitworth Stansbury and James Roberts.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, Mrs. Buda Brown and MLA Tom Baye were nominated Social Credit candidates in the Vancouver-Point Grey riding. Point Grey is the riding of provincial Liberal leader Arthur Laing.

POOR EXCUSE

At the Saanich CCF meeting, Mr. Snowsell said the only excuse Mr. Bennett had for calling the election was that he was intimidated into it by the Vancouver Sun.

"That is his own reported statement and it is a poor excuse for an election," Mr. Snowsell said. "It is a deliberate attempt by our premier to disenfranchise many eligible voters in this province."

Mr. Snowsell referred to the premier as "a dictator who gives instructions to his people that they must not enter into debate unless they are told."

"He is not a Social Crediter. That is just a sham to fool the people and get votes. I would welcome a public debate with any Social Credit candidate to discuss the election issues."

REBURY

Mr. Snowsell reiterated the statements of CCF Opposition Leader Robert Strachan that Mr. Bennett was "bribing the electorate with their own money."

"It is the taxpayers' money that is building roads, and they are well paid to look after this money for us."

He asked why B.C. Forest Products Ltd. had 32,000 acres outside of forest management licence areas, why it declared that it they had to cut the timber according to forest management regulations they could not operate their Youbou mill.

Mr. Snowsell declared B.C. Electric had been given the profitable power resources of the province by the Social Credit government, although it was the B.C. Power Commission which had brought electric power to remote areas of the province.

"If we drive Social Credit out of office it will be one of the greatest steps to further democracy this province has ever seen," Mr. Snowsell declared.

William Moore, CCF MLA for Comox, spoke in support of Mr. Snowsell and said he was confident the CCF would be returned in Comox, Nanaimo and Alberni.

"In Saanich and Esquimalt," he stated, "the Liberals and Social Crediters have no hope of winning the election."

The meeting raised a collection of $142.

SETS TARGET — Nikita Khrushchev, chief of the Soviet Communist party, has declared it, Russia's duty "to catch up and overtake in the shortest possible time the most advanced capitalist countries in output per head of the population."

Moscow Radio reported today, in a speech Friday to a meeting of 100,000 Ukrainian coal miners he said Russia's "international position is good" and added: "Our strength is great, but we want to use this strength not for war but for peace, for the welfare of our people, for improving its cultural level and for raising its living standards."

IT'S STEVENSON AND KEFAUVER

Democrats Look to Guns, GOP Delegates Gather

By GEORGE KITCHEN

CHICAGO (CP)—The Democratic party, after a forgive-and-forget windup to their national convention, headed today towards the Nov. 6 United States general election with a refurbished platform and a politically seasoned presidential team.

Heading the ticket is 56-year-old Adlai E. Stevenson, the former governor of Illinois, who scored a smashing first-ballot victory in winning his second nomination as the party's presidential candidate. He led the Democrats against the Republicans in the 1952 election campaign but lost out to Dwight D. Eisenhower in the tussle for the White House.

His running mate will be 53-year-old Estes Kefauver, the politically-adept Tennessee senator who scored national headlines five years ago as chairman of the U.S. Senate's crime investigating committee. He joined Stevenson on the ticket with an equally impressive win for the vice-presidential nomination.

As the Democratic convention closed up shop for another four years, the political spotlight swung immediately to San Francisco, where the Republicans open their convention ident Richard N. Nixon in the second spot.

The Democrats, who had been fighting one another here all week, put on a big closing unity demonstration Friday night in the huge stockyards amphitheatre.

Philosopher in Politics

MOST AMERICANS AND VIRTUALLY all foreigners will agree that the Democratic Party has chosen its best man in nominating Mr. Adlai Stevenson for the presidency.

Though defeated four years ago, he has been a continuing and powerful force in the life of the United States and the world—a force which does not depend on the tricks of politics but comes from a scholar's knowledge of the whole democratic process. Mr. Stevenson is probably the most distinguished American philosopher of politics since Woodrow Wilson.

But it does not follow, of course, that he will be elected. So long as the health of President Eisenhower holds, the odds against Mr. Stevenson are heavy, perhaps impossible.

The President's popularity should be sufficient to overcome the electoral weakness of his party, though it may not be sufficient to elect a Republican majority in the Congress.

Without the obstacle of Mr. Eisenhower there can be little doubt that Mr. Stevenson would win with ease. He can hardly hope to win unless the American people decide, despite their respect for the President, that Mr. Eisenhower's health will not permit him to carry the burdens of the presidency through three more years. Much, therefore, will depend upon the President's health between now and election day.

However the presidential and congressional elections turn out, the Democratic convention has shown that American politics are moving away from radicalism of right and left toward the moderate centre.

Mr. Stevenson was nominated as a moderate, especially in the divisive racial issue. He easily defeated Mr. Harriman who, in the context of contemporary politics, is a radical and, if nominated, probably would have split his party by attempting to force the pace of desegregation in the solid Democratic South. Even the prestige of Mr. Truman—an able politician strangely deaf to the sentiments of the nation—was insufficient to nominate Mr. Harriman.

The times and the nation's present humor call for moderation and in Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Stevenson two moderates will contest the November election. Either one of them would make an excellent president. For all its convention antics, the American system usually manages somehow to choose good men in both parties. Certainly the best men available have been nominated this year.

That fact is important to the American people and almost equally important to the free world at large. During the next four years the American president, whoever he may be, must play a vital role in human affairs under conditions drastically changed and quite incalculable.

In a country governed by the British parliamentary system a prime minister's power is shared by a cabinet, his decisions must carry the collective judgment of his colleagues and are always subject to the veto of the legislature.

In the United States the president, elected directly by the people, has unlimited individual power within the confines of the constitution; he can disregard his cabinet officers, who are not ministers in the British sense but only administrators and advisers; he cannot be disciplined or dismissed by the Congress.

A strong president can usually dominate his nation's policies and particularly its foreign policies which lie solely in his hands. And since the United States is the natural leader of the free world no nation in it can escape the success or failure of the American president.

For this reason we all have a large stake in the autumn election and no foreigners will watch it with more interest than Canadians. It is not for Canadians to meddle in their neighbors' politics but they will regard with satisfaction and confidence an election which offers the American people a choice between two men of genuine greatness and good will.

Repercussions of the Tax

FINAL PASSAGE OF THE controversial 20 per cent federal tax on advertising in Canadian editions of foreign magazines has not removed the validity of the criticisms levelled against it.

The Government claims that the tax is necessary to protect Canadian magazines which must expend large sums for editorial material, whereas certain competing publications, printed in Canada, receive almost their entire contents at low cost from parent publications in the United States.

The tax, levied on advertising in these periodicals, will provide a measure of protection for some Canadian magazines. But the repercussions are wide and harmful.

As Senator Norman Lambert said in opposing the measure, the tax is "a perversion of Liberal principles" and a "protectionist" provision in favor of a specialized group of Canadian magazines "which really do not need the protection." "It is invidious and provocative of reprisals."

The latter is a point which may shortly have practical application. The measure has aroused considerable criticism in the United States and weakens Canada's case in protesting against tariff obstacles imposed by the United States from time to time.

Farther abroad, it lists Canada among those nations which have created impediments to the free flow of ideas across its frontiers. It may be argued that the tax does not apply to foreign magazines brought in as such. But it does place a restriction on the publication of editorial material in Canada which originates abroad. As such, it could easily be misinterpreted in other countries and eventually misapplied here.

Sale of such periodicals in Canada will continue since they provide a type of reading matter for which there is a substantial demand. Such publications as Time and Readers Digest are affected. But is not the true solution to foreign competition in the periodical field a matter of raising Canadian standards? Some Canadian magazines have done this, with outstanding success and without the aid of a shield created through taxation.

The Honest Man

DIODENES, SEEKING VAINLY for an honest man, should have met Mr. U. Nu. of Burma. In a recent statement he confessed that his party, the Anti-Fascist People's Freedom League, on taking office, found itself infiltrated by many professed patriots who "reaped a full reward and lined their pockets . . . became drunk with power and degenerated into scoundrels." And Mr. U. Nu added: "I myself, as president, am most blameworthy."

Such candor is rare among Western statesmen. It would be good for their souls, and for democratic politics, if they sometimes followed Mr. U. Nu's example.

All Kinds of Weather, Whether or Not

From The Times (London)

MOST of us have only an indistinct mental picture of what goes on in the Meteorological Office.

No doubt there is a sort of operations room, in which minor bureaucrats equipped with billiard cues push symbols representing bright intervals and associated troughs of low pressure hither and thither across a huge map of the British Isles.

Somewhere, presumably, there must be a weather-cock, the object of a tireless vigilance. The seismograph one visualizes as being kept in the basement; it is possibly rather an old machine, but its brasswork and the plaque bearing the makers' name (Upshaft and Rigor, Shrewsbury, 1904) gleam like gold under the loving care of a retired coastguard.

A small editorial department is responsible for the lapidary wording of the weather forecasts, or as they are now sometimes rather evasively called "synopses"; here a rigid stylistic discipline reigns, and new recruits soon learn that attempts to strike a lyrical note by the use of such words as zephyr, balmy, torrid, and tempestuous are regarded with extreme disfavor.

It may well have been in an endeavor to repress still further such deviationist tendencies that the Meteorological Office recently adopted the practice of talking about "the general weather situation" when all it means (as far as ordinary mortals can see) is "the weather."

Life within this organization cannot be very exciting, and in hot weather there is keen competition among junior members of the staff for the duty of taking the No. 2 thermometer (which, unlike the ponderous No. 1, is portable) up to the Air Ministry roof and seeing what the temperature is.

But in normal weather the general routine situation must be rather soul-destroying, and it is all the more refreshing to read of the special mission being undertaken by the Meteorological Office's Mr. L. H. Starr.

Mr. Starr, the report said, journeyed to Cleethorpes "to investigate complaints that the forecast for that part of the east coast had often been wrong."

A lesser man would have travelled incognito, for not only had the forecast for the day on which he reached Cleethorpes been seriously misleading but Mr. Starr was confronted on arrival by Mr. Moon, a night watchman at a pumping station who runs a rival meteorological service based in the sum-

As Our Readers See It

Food at the Home

Re the poor food at the Aged Ladies' Home: I happen to have worked at that home and have seen the food prepared and served.

True, the breakfast varies very little, but when we remember there are around 100 ladies cared for in that home what would one expect served, especially for the mere pittance paid.

I very much doubt if there is any other place in the whole of Canada where aged people are so well cared for for so little money.

No one invites those ladies to the home, no one compels them to stay there. Even the costs of heating that home must be enormous.

Please make it plain, Mr. Editor, this letter has not been solicited, neither does anyone connected with the home know it is being written.

I am British and I like to see fair play.

Don't Mind Bans

Your paper recently carried a new attack on Jehovah's witnesses from the Cathedral. In reply thereto and on behalf of the people of good-will who love Truth, I would point out that reformers are often made to appear evil by their opposers whereas ministers of Satan, often appear garbed as an angel of light, thereby deceiving many.

I now quote word for word from the court records an incident showing that Mrs. Russell herself did not believe that her husband was guilty of immoral conduct. When her own counsel (see page 10) asked Mrs. Russell this question, "you don't mean that your husband was guilty of adultery?" Answer: "No." Ibid. Page 19. Two newspapers were used for libel for making statements implying immorality; Pastor Russell won both.

The F.B.I. investigated the Jehovah's witness organization in the United States and cleared them of all charges of being a subversive organization. The Prime Minister of Australia may have "suspected" that they were subversive and it is true the Menzies government put a ban on our activities; so did Hitler.

These bans upon the activities of Jehovah's witnesses is indeed not a bit surprising—neither do they disturb the Witnesses for they remember the words of Our Lord, "You shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake." Neither do such bans interfere with their work as is shown by the steady growth of their world-wide activities even while under such bans.

Disturbing

Although I find the contemporary political scene and climate in British Columbia faintly nauseating and prefer to follow the more wholesome adventures of Marilyn at present, I cannot forbear to comment on Mr. Bennett's recent election announcement and to ask whether other listeners to the broadcast did not feel as I and some other people listening with me did (some of them, incidentally, until recently Secord sympathizers) that Mr. Bennett was in fact feeling rather nervous!

What Mr. Bennett may have to feel nervous about is of course merely a matter for conjecture and, as they say, anyone's guess; it did seem, however, that he was not on this occasion speaking with his usual assurance and composure.

Mr. Arthur Laing's comment upon what he calls Mr. Bennett's "Blitzkrieg tactics" is of course apt. It brings to mind too a comment by a "New Canadian" acquaintance of mine made soon after the present government had taken office.

This person, found it, he said, disturbing, after his own experiences in the past, to find what he called "demagoguery and incipient dictatorship" in British Columbia and accepted so readily by the people.

So perhaps it behoves all of us to be very careful this time when we go to the polls.

MARGARET SULLIVAN.

Mr. Snifkin's Horrid Secret

IN the household next door this will long be remembered as the summer in which Mr. Horace Snifkin took leave of his senses; the summer of moral collapse, of deflation while the rest of the world was inflated like a balloon; the summer of over-production and under-consumption, of exploitation and involuntary servitude; the only summer in half a century when Mr. Snifkin amassed too much cordwood.

Hutchison

Everyone has forgotten it by now, but June was a cold month in these parts and the consumption of wood, correspondingly high. By the middle of that month Mr. Snifkin, surveying his diminished capital, fell into a panic and cut wood like crazy.

He could have been seen at dawn, if anyone had risen that early, sawing furiously in the remote recesses of the forest and hiding his wood where Mrs. Snifkin could never find it. (He knew, like every wood cutter, that a woman has no conscience when it comes to fuel. She will actually burn it in her stove.)

RETURNING to his cabin at breakfast time, Mr. Snifkin would carry in a handful of decayed twigs and tell his wife that they must serve her stove all day. When she complained rather bitterly he would remark that the women of China managed to keep a large household fed on a handful of dried grass and that the Eskimos maintained a satisfactory diet on a few cupfuls of seal oil.

This logic failed to impress Mrs. Snifkin, a woman of unimaginative, literal mind, and she callously burned three bundles of precious cedar shingles, long hoarded under the cabin, some valuable oak fragments (the makings of a book case if Mr. Snifkin ever got around to making it) and several cubic yards of old magazines set aside years ago in case Mr. Snifkin decided to read them.

ALL this time Mr. Snifkin was quietly piling up his treasure in the backwoods and cunningly concealing it under a covering of brush.

In July two of Mr. Snifkin's oldest friends, distinguished members of the judiciary, arrived for a rest after their long, hard year on the bench, and they were promptly sentenced to a fortnight of hard labor with axe and saw until they reeled back to Vancouver, exhausted and each ten pounds lighter.

They would never return but Mr. Snifkin didn't care. They had cut almost a quarter of a cord between them and in his desperation Mr. Snifkin would have burned their bench if it had been handy.

THEN, with offers of free board and lodging, he lured into his camp two young men—whom, otherwise worthless, happened to own a chain saw (this though Mr. Snifkin had sworn that no vile mechanical contraption of this sort would ever violate the sanctity of his woods.) These deluded guests were royally entertained so long as they could find any dead trees to cut and when, in their enthusiasm, they committed the crime of felling a healthy tree, they were sent home in disgrace.

Thus by the first of August Mrs. Snifkin was cooking on a broken electrical hot plate, envying the women of China and the Arctic and threatening to go on strike, while Mr. Snifkin was surveying a hidden mountain of wood with the feverish eye of a miser.

As he told me in confidence, he had a full supply for 1957 and 1958 and, with luck, would have his 1959 vintage safely in hand by autumn. He said he was out of the woods at last and he spent all his time in them, still sawing like crazy.

THE poor man had gone mad. His economic system was completely out of joint by now, for an over-abundance of goods did not ease the shortage of supply or cause a fall in prices. On the contrary, Mrs. Snifkin was down to her last shingle and a few willow twigs.

Now came the tragic discovery. Wandering through the bush one morning in the first pale hours of dawn, Mr. Snifkin stumbled upon a massive pile of cordwood cut by his hands four summers ago, carefully concealed from his wife and completely forgotten. Of course it was decayed and worthless by now under the rain and snow of four winters.

A weaker man than Mr. Snifkin would have wept at that sight and thrown his saw into the lake, followed by himself. As the reader knows, Mr. Snifkin is a man of iron character. No disaster can shake him. After a single cry of pain, he began to carry the decayed wood to Mrs. Snifkin in his wheelbarrow and, though it will hardly burn, she regards it as a king's ransom. Domestic peace has been restored next door. Everybody is happy and the stove almost gets warm.

THE timetable has therefore been extended for a year. The wood supply for 1960 is well in hand. By then, of course, it will also be decayed and practically worthless. But Mr. Snifkin, a Midas whose touch turns everything to fuel, is well satisfied and is taking the rest of the summer easy. He seldom starts cutting wood before 8 a.m. these days and often rests for a full hour at lunch time.

His active years, he tells me sadly, are drawing to their close. What is that growing heap sheltered from public view behind a large cedar? That, says Mr. Snifkin, rather sheepishly, is the beginning of the year 1962, concerning which he has sworn me to secrecy lest Mrs. Snifkin should get ideas and demand a stick of sound wood that will burn.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

One of the Yearly Milestones of Our Lives

CRICKETS sang as though their very lives depended on their raucous chorus; grass was no longer green but straw-colored and brittle underfoot; mooses in the oak woods were warm and dry and the wild licorice had turned sweet.

It was August. The wild and riotous growth of June and July was over and the ripening time had come. The pears, plums and apples swelled slowly on a thousand trees in Victoria's backyards. The squash and marrow and cucumbers filled out their tough and corrugated skins, while peaches blushed against hot southern walls.

And it had a great significance for the small fry, who suddenly realized that the days were racing ahead to the autumn and the discipline of school once more. Feet that had squarely known shoes all summer would soon be crowded into somber black stockings and stout leather boots.

Perhaps there were some little boys and girls among us who so much thirsted for knowledge that they welcomed the advent of the classroom, but for the most part we thirsted only for freedom to follow any random provocation that presented itself to fill the long and dusty days.

And there was still one great compensation ahead of us before the school bell again divided our days into set and rigid periods. And that was the annual exhibition.

Until they burned to the ground in a magnificent and glorious blaze, the old Victoria exhibition buildings were a marvel to behold. I think now it was no less than a providential blessing that they didn't burn much sooner and at a time when hundreds of men, women and children thronged their wide and tinder-dry aisles.

Marvel to Behold

But there was still one great compensation ahead of us before the school bell again divided our days into set and rigid periods. And that was the annual exhibition.

As soon as we could get away from this simple chore, we made straight for the main building, where the industrial displays were arranged in marvelous fantasy. It wasn't that we had the slightest interest in the exhibits, but in those spaciuous days there was a great faith by manufacturers in samples—not just leaflets describing a product—but a fairly generous helping of it, usually in the form of a miniature package of the commodity displayed.

The result, of course, was that by the day's end we gave the appearance of a sort of lumpy pregnancy as our blouses bulged with loot. Most of the stuff was some form of other of prepared food or

The main building was crowned with a huge (and useless) dome, which crashed like an atomic explosion when the supporting timbers burned away.

However that was much later than the great days when the exhibition was one of the yearly milestones of our lives.

When the exhibition opened we converged on it in droves, each provided with spending money either handed over by parents or, more likely, earned by minor chores for days beforehand. But never a cent of this money passed into the hands of the exhibition board; it was retained solely to spend after we got in.

This was no problem at all. Either we found a loose board in an unguarded piece of fence or we crawled through a window, with the connivance of stable boys or jockeys, into one of the box stalls of the race horses.

This was the best means of ingress but was riskier because we sometimes had to sneak through a stall occupied by a nervous thoroughbred who deeply resented the intrusion. A flying hoof once missed me by a fraction of an inch as I ducked behind a high-spirited horse.

Walking the Horses

We would pay our way for this unorthodox entry by walking horses slowly around after their races until their trembling flanks steeled down and they could be loosed in their stalls.

As soon as we could get away from this simple chore, we made straight for the main building, where the industrial displays were arranged in marvelous fantasy. It wasn't that we had the slightest interest in the exhibits, but in those spaciuous days there was a great faith by manufacturers in samples—not just leaflets describing a product—but a fairly generous helping of it, usually in the form of a miniature package of the commodity displayed.

The result, of course, was that by the day's end we gave the appearance of a sort of lumpy pregnancy as our blouses bulged with loot. Most of the stuff was some form of other of prepared food or soap, but it quickly acquired the quality of a valued possession and was in sharp demand for swapping.

The next most fascinating thing was the booth of the man who sold gobs of ice cream stuffed into "crisped and cone-shaped flat cakes. He called them ice cream cornucopias; "Git your ice cream cornucopias, folks, the latest thing."

I think they were a nickel apiece and beside being entirely new were very good.

There was also, just as there is today, the hotdog and hamburger stand, which smelled so enticingly but whose product never seemed to taste as good as it smelled.

In the Parade

Then came the cattle shows and sometimes we could earn a dime by leading a cow or a gentle steer in the livestock parade in front of the grandstand.

Last of all, we visited the midway with its blazing flares and loud-voiced barkers and tired-looking young women in dingy grass skirts—they seemed pretty old to us and about as attractive as sacks of meal.

But the snake show was different. You could smell the snakes before you saw the wonderful posters showing a fearless young woman festooned by deadly reptiles. So that's where "two-bits" went and inside there was almost nothing to see but a half-dozen poor half-alive snakes which a girl would languidly pick up now and then and drape over her shoulders.

But it turned out once that this became the best part of the exhibition, although it was really the day after when we were mooching around to look over the debris. Apparently business hadn't been very good so that the snake booth owner and his snake charmer—probably his wife—got very drunk and forgot to put their pets away.

Someone pulled down his stand, dumping the sluggish snakes to the ground, where they promptly crawled under the Women's Building.

I don't know if they were ever all recaptured.

The Open Road

To one accustomed to doing his travelling on his own four wheels the complications inherent in railway journeys have always been full of terrors. Timetables, for instance, they have become incredibly exact that only the lofty geniuses in the ticket office can figure them out. This column's suspicious nature will never believe what the genius says so it spends the intervals between buying and going in a state of misery, feeling it has been horns-woggled by the unknown. Who can tell that make the supercilious young man behind the counter hasn't sent it to some place it doesn't want to go, on a train that stops everywhere and from which it has to change in the middle of the night?

The joys of anticipating are somewhat blunted by this knowledge that it is in the grip of mysterious forces. And then comes the agonizing business of Getting to the Station. The young man clearly said, at least three times, that the train leaves the station at 6.45 precisely. Standard Time. (Does one add or does one subtract? In moments of stress this column can never remember and is too embarrassed to ask.)

So it gets there, complete with family and mountains of baggage, the two modest suitcases and fishing rod tubes having by now grown to a hideous jumble of bedrolls, gunny sacks and fragile paper parcels full of teddy bears. At 6.45 Daylight. No redcaps. No train. No coffee shop.

Its family is now in a different mood, and stares accusingly at it. Beneath the stern mask of the world air which this column reserves for travelling its coward heart is all of a flutter. Wrong station? Did the man say a.m. or p.m.? Even the clear words Canadian National on both ticket and station fail to reassure. It is all probably a horrible plot to make this column look like a fool by sending it on a wild goose chase to some impossible place it has never heard of.

In response to the urgings of its wife it makes anxious enquiry of an important looking official who saunters across the concourse with that superior look which railway people reserve for their patrons. He doesn't know. He is the janitor. He refers us to the large blackboard upon which arrivals and departures are chalked in rather illiterate characters. But who believes blackboards anyway? This column returns and reports, adopting an I-told-you-so tone and giving a competent look which fools no one.

Hours pass. The station begins to fill with people scurrying purposefully about. Tension mounts. The clerks at the ticket desk are helpful and affable to everyone but this column, for which they reserve their most superior and patronizing looks. They tell him in careful words of one syllable that the train may be boarded in 10 minutes.

It doesn't believe them. There is no one at the Travellers Aid in whom it can confide. It peers fearfully through the iron bars at the trains drawn up outside. Very soon the decision must be made which one to board. Agony.

In the end it chumps up a nice looking grandmother going to Kamloops who says just you follow me and my isn't that a nice little girl how old? It replies absently, with a quick prayer that the little girl won't suddenly decide to move off and get lost at the last minute.

The dour official at the gates throws them back with a clang, and everyone surges through. This column, clutching armfuls of parcels and children, sticks close to the Kamloops grandmother, and finally makes ear 401 without mishap. The porter sneers at its luggage, and looks glum at the mention of its destination. So does the conductor, who is evidently thinking of the time he will at a lousy flag stop. This column feels very humble in the presence of these personages, but its courage has returned. It is on the train, and nothing can get it off until it is good and ready.

With the greatest sang froid it leads its starving and had tempered entourage through six cars to the diner. Which is, of course, closed.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

The Colored 'Fiver'

LONDON—People here welcome the news that there is to be a new five-pound note (the "fiver") issued by the Bank of England early next year. The rising cost of living has dropped the value of the pound down and down so that you need so many more of them now to keep abreast of your day-to-day expenses.

In Britain there are only three denominations of paper money—the brown ten-shilling note (about $1.37), the green pound note (2.75) and the white fiver ($5.18). Over the last couple of years, with fatter pay packets and higher prices causing a sharp devaluation of the pound, there has been agitation for a two-pound note—from the public in general and bank employees in particular.

Reyburn

In pre-war days (with cigarettes one shilling a packet, a chocolate bar a sixth of a shilling and a glass of beer a third of a shilling) when you split a pound you still had lots of spending money. But today (with cigarettes just on four shillings, chocolate half a shilling and beer a shilling) putting a pound note down on the counter is much the same as breaking into a dollar—what's left over is gone before you know it.

The result is that folks here now have to do something they've never had to do in the history of the pound—carry wads of them around. The English in the past always regarded it as slightly vulgar the way Americans and Canadians waved around great rolls of dollar bills; they needed to carry with them only a select few of their high-value pound notes. But nowadays you have to have a wad of pound notes on hand. If you want to avoid having to go to the bank every day or so.

And in the banks, they tell me the amount of work they have to do has gone up threefold in extra time spent counting all these devalued pounds.

So, a two-pound note was an obvious solution to this paper problem. But the Bank of England, no doubt foreseeing further inflation, has decided to solve the problem of popularizing the fiver. Until now the British have steered clear of the fiver for two reasons.

First, being white and not looking the least like money, it could so easily be thrown away as a scrap of paper. And secondly, there was a stigma attached to it.

Black market operators during the war and shady types today always had lots of fivers. Terms are strictly cash when you're dodging income tax and they always take their big payoffs in fivers. So, in the public mind, to brandish fivers hinted you had been up to something not above-board.

The Bank of England's new fiver will be colored (they're keeping the color a secret so that the counterfeiters won't be tipped off) and instead of being the big hunk of paper that the white fiver was it will be just a little larger than the pound note.

ANIMALS AROUND US

Halved, Flatworm Soon Becomes Two

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

In dark places under stones and other shelter both in fresh water and in the sea an inquisitive searcher may find flat leaf-like creatures that glide along a wet surface by no visible means. These are free-living flatworms, animals of minor importance to man yet of considerable interest to the student of nature. Most are of small size, scarcely 1/4 of an inch, but a few giants restricted to the seashore attain a length of nearly half a foot.

For the first time a definite head and tail is distinguishable. In most of the animals that we have considered so far it was not possible to say which was the front end.

In those that moved, such as the jellyfishes, any direction was "forward." With the flatworms and with most of those that follow, one end takes the lead and the mouth, eyes, feelers and other sense organs tend to be found on the forward end.

The flatworms have not completely attained this arrangement. While simple eyes and feelers are located on the head, the mouth is on the end of a tube which projects through an opening more than half way back toward the tail. Nevertheless, they have made a great advance in being so organized that they can at least travel in a definite direction.

While flatworms have a rather complicated body with the beginnings of a central nervous system and with other organs well developed, they have startling powers of regeneration. If one of these worms is cut into two pieces each will develop the missing portion so that two complete worms are produced. If an individual is cut into more than two pieces each portion will grow into a complete worm, a head forming at the front end of each section and a tail at the rear.

However, the portions nearest the front end are the quickest to regenerate and the parts farthest from the original head are the slowest. Deliberate breakage into two parts is used by some species as means of reproduction instead of laying eggs.

One division of the flatworms includes those that live on or in other animals as parasites. These are the flukes and tapeworms, both rarely seen nowadays by the average person thanks to modern methods of food inspection and preparation.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Penticton Festival Attracts Thousands

(From CP Dispatches)

PENTICTON—Thousands of residents and visitors lined Penticton's main street and lake-shore drive Friday to watch the colorful ninth annual peach festival parade.

Nine bands and 45 units, depicting community, commercial, industrial and charitable life took part in the parade. Included were cadet units from Vernon, the RCAF band and district and local brass and pipe bands. Drum majorettes proceeded each band to add color to the procession.

Kelowna's Lady of the Lake float won first prize for community floats, with Summerland jubilee float second.

PROJECTS HELD UP

NORTH KAMLOOPS—Village commissioners said Friday that work projects are being delayed here because they do not know how much money they have to spend.

The commissioners said they had not been informed by the Department of Municipal Affairs of the amount of a grant promised by the department when the village was incorporated.

The village commission has asked the department for the "earliest possible" reply to its queries about the grant.

TRAFFIC SAFETY DAY

VANCOUVER—Safety supervisors have set September 23 as a day dedicated to commercial traffic safety in the Greater Vancouver area.

The day has been named SOS Day, for Safety on the Streets. It is organized by the Association of Fleet Supervisors, affiliated with the Vancouver Traffic and Safety Council.

The program will feature roadshows, reliability runs and safe driving demonstrations. Trucks, taxis and heavy lumber equipment will take part in the demonstrations.

Among organizations taking part are the police departments of Vancouver, New Westminster and West Vancouver; RCMP from Victoria, Burnaby, Richmond and North Vancouver; traffic and safety councils of

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—The moist southerly circulation about the filling low pressure area in the Gulf of Alaska is still piling up considerable amounts of cloud over the north coast. However, as the circulation about the low steadily weakens, there will be a gradual decrease in cloudiness in most north coastal areas.

The cloudiness in the dry Arctic air in the central interior has now disappeared and the warming which was quite pronounced in this area Friday will continue today and Sunday. Not much change in present sunny conditions in the southern interior is likely over the weekend.

ART IN REVIEW

By COLIN GRAHAM

Caution Prevails With Experts When Restoring Great Paintings

When this famed Velasquez portrait was cleaned by Britain's National Gallery shortly after the war, a storm of criticism arose over the results. Charges that radical and ruthless cleaning methods had "utterly and irretrievably ruined" the picture, along with key works by Rembrandt, Rubens and others which had also been restored, led to the appointment of an international commission to go into the affair.

Happily, this commission of experts was able to discover no evidence of damage, but the ensuing debate on cleaning techniques by museum men on both sides of the Atlantic revealed the existence of two embattled camps — those who favored radical and complete cleaning and those who preferred a moderate, even hesitant approach.

To understand what the fuss is about one should know that virtually all old paintings are customarily covered with a protective coat of varnish. In time this coating goes yellow, cracks, collects dust and dirt, and hence must eventually be replaced with a fresh coating. If the picture is to be seen other than "through a glass darkly,"

X-RAY USED
The usual procedure is to dissolve the varnish by rubbing with swabs soaked in chemical solvents, after first learning as much as possible about the condition of the picture through the use of X-rays, infra-red and ultra-violet light, and other scientific aids.

Repaints (damaged areas that have been touched up at some time or other) will for example show up as dark patches under ultra-violet light, while X-rays provide a good deal of information about the various layers of original paint.

The whole procedure of swabbing is based on the assumption that the solvent will remove the varnish but will not attack the artist's paint. The commission found, for instance, that Velasquez' paint was impervious to far stronger solvents than those used by the National Gallery.

FOR QUICK SOLVENTS
The radical camp claims that evidence such as this proves it is safe to remove all the varnish with fast solvents and points out that the halfway measures of the moderates, who use mild solvents and seldom clean away the entire varnish film, leave an unpleasant amount of dirt and discolored varnish in the gullies and cracks of the paint film.

To this the moderates reply that it is not desirable to remove the old varnish completely.

For one thing, the color of old paintings has often altered with time, creating harsh color discords (e.g. Vermeer's greens and Poussin's blues). A slight veil of yellow varnish will tone these down.

For another, and more seriously, it is known that the old painters often finished their work by applying the final color in delicate glazes mixed in solutions containing varnish.

NOT FOOLPROOF
How can the radical restorer be absolutely certain that he does not clean away some of these along with the varnish?

Looking for the appearance of color on the swab is not a fool-proof precaution.

To me it seems that the moderates win hands down. Surely it is best to be absolutely sure and hand on the picture intact to a posterity which may eventually discover a radical method that is fully safe. The moderates must be in the majority in any case, as I have yet to meet a radical in person.

British Star's Trans-Atlantic Substitution

NEW YORK (UP)—There's nothing like "being up" in a part.

Gladys Cooper, the distinguished British actress, had a big success here last season in one of the two leading roles of "The Chalk Garden." She was preparing to leave for the West Coast to rehearse in a touring version of that play when an emergency developed in the London production of the Enid Bagnold drama.

Edith Evans, who was playing "the Cooper role" there, had to undergo emergency surgery. The British producer sought successfully to get Miss Cooper to go there for a fast four weeks of substituting. Miss Cooper is expected to be free just in time to rush back here and get in a week of rehearsal with the American touring company before it opens Sept. 6 in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Folk Singer Returns; Favors Educator Role

BY DON PEACOCK
OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian folk-singer Jacques Labrecque is probably the most successful one-shot lecturer the Sorbonne in Paris ever had. At the end of a lecture on folk songs, the students mobbed him for autographs.

This enthusiasm probably sprang from the unique lecture style the 39-year-old Montrealer uses. For he would rather sing the 1,000-odd folk songs he has unearthed in Canada's English, French and Indian cultures than talk.

But he finds it necessary to stop singing now and then to explain the song. This is his lecturing.

FROM SOUP TO STAGE
His interest in folk songs has led him through many strange fields—from soup salesman in Montreal to male lead in the London version of the Folies Bergere. But even in London, some of the habitant Quebec farm on which he grew up went with him.

On the farm at St. Benoit, Que., he milked cows. In London when a song had words and rhythm suited the action of a cow-milker, Jacques illustrated with bucolic pantomime. The Londoners loved it.

The husky folk-singer, his grey-flecked dark hair long and curly, has a sparkle of Gallic wit in his brown eyes. But there is seriousness underneath.

"I see my role more as an educator," he told a reporter during a recent visit to the capital. "But I must never forget to entertain."

MESSAGE FOR CANADIANS
Jacques went to Europe in 1949 to sing in the international folk music festival at Venice. He planned to stay abroad for three months but didn't return to Canada until early this year.

He spent two years in London, appearing in theatres and some movies and working with the BBC. Then he went to Paris to resume his studies in folk music.

"I returned to Canada because I want to demonstrate to Canadians who realize the importance of culture the part that folk songs play in it," he said.

While in France Jacques toured the country with movies from Canada's National Film Board.

Jacques, who started singing professionally in Montreal at the age of 17, now plans to work in Canadian and American television, make a tour of Canada and take on any other interesting jobs in his field.

One for which he was gathering material from the National Museum here is a plan to record 10 French songs and 10 English songs for the CBC's international service. They are to be sent to all of Canada's embassies.

AUDREY SAYS

Concert Season To Be Highlighted By Three Top Canadian Pianists

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON
With the announcement by Municipal Chapter, IODE, that it is to sponsor a recital, Nov. 8, by Malcolm Troup, 24-year-old Canadian pianist, the 1956 musical season in this city appears to be earning a subtitle in the Chinese fashion — "Year of Pianists."

As has already been noted here, Glenn Gould, Robin Wood and Almee Waroff are to be guest soloists with the Victoria Symphony. But what lends particular lustre to these events is the fact that three out of four artists are Canadians who have won international attention and high critical esteem.

Malcolm Troup has been doing concert tours of Europe with brilliant success. An IODE scholarship took him to England following his Toronto debut at age 17 and in Germany he was able to study with famed pianist, Walter Gieseking.

Like his fellow countryman Glenn Gould, Troup early displayed the scope of his musical gifts by experimenting in the field of composition. At the age of 11, he won a Canadian Authors and Publishers' Association prize for a piano sonata.

All three young Canadians have solidly proved the value of scholarships for the arts and have already amply rewarded such organizations as the IODE, Victoria Musical Art Society and other sources from which timely assistance came.

While some of musical Victoria may find certain aspects of the coming season disappointing, one or two events—aside from those already mentioned—will be high on the priority list when entertainment plans are being made up.

The Paganini Quartet, for which there seems to be no substitute in the affections of this city's concert-goers, are to be brought back in an Art Gallery-sponsored concert, Nov. 7.

This will be their first return since the serious automobile accident which nearly put an end to their career as a quartet. Personnel, with one exception, are identical as on the two former occasions when they played here.

Win Fellowships

The three conductors of community orchestras selected as beneficiaries of a Rockefeller Foundation grant are Franz Bibb, of the New York Symphony, Donald Johnson, conductor of the symphony orchestras in Altoona and Johnstown, Pa., and James Robertson, conductor of the Wichita, Kan., Symphony. The grant was made to the American Symphony Orchestra League to further the training of three young conductors.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Wardrobe)
A (Don't Miss) B (For Many Days)
C (To put in time)

(A) "AWAY ALL BOATS" (Odeon) — There is so much salt in Universal-International's navy story, "Away All Boats," that the ham passes almost unnoticed.

Jeff Chandler, a four-ringed U.S.N. captain, wanted a cruiser to command and all he got was the Belinda, a spanking new Attack Transport. In his bitterness he decides that if he makes her the crack ship of the unit he may still get the command he cherishes.

While he sets about this task "Away All Boats" cleverly deals with the matters of ship discipline and organization in a fair attempt to instruct landlubbers in the way of men who sail blue waters in wartime.

At that, it's pretty fair shakes although sometimes the point is done brown. It is well known, for instance, that the life of a CO is a lonely one. But when he has to depend on a monkey for a companion it would seem as though he has joined the wrong service.

LIFE in the wardroom, the esprit de corps of officers, the fine shade between leadership and persecution, the relationship between officer and rating, the duties of the ship's executive officer are explained one by one in an interesting manner.

But "Away All Boats" derives its punch and entertainment values from the vividly exciting scenes that include the ship's landing craft beating their way to the Japanese-held beaches in the face of bitter enemy resistance.

Highlight of it all is when Japanese suicide aircraft, the Kamikazes, attack the Belinda and her sister ships by crashing into them. Somehow, in the Technicolored giant screen treatment, the past becomes the present and the horror and uselessness and wastefulness of it all is remembered.

AS THE Belinda's captain, Chandler does one of his best chores. Not since another war picture, "Highland Express" has the prematurely white-haired actor shown to such good advantage. George Nader, Lex Barker, Keith Andes and Richard Boone are also pleasing. Praise must be directed to the lesser characters as well for, in many instances, it is they who make "Away All Boats" the entertaining action picture it is.

Julie Adams, as the girl left ashore, doesn't seem to know quite what to do with her part. This is quite understandable. For it never should have been written in.

For those who like plays about navy ships at war this makes for solid entertainment.

Crabb Biography To Appear Soon

One of the most provocative, spectacular news stories of our time was the disappearance of Cmdr. Lionel Crabb in Portsmouth Harbour during last spring's visit of Krushchev and Bulganin to England.

Prior to his disappearance, for many months Crabb had worked with Marshall Pugh on the story of his bizarre career and daring underwater intelligence activities in the Mediterranean during World War II.

It is a biography that should make exciting reading when it appears this month under the imprint of the MacMillan Company of Canada. The last chapter is to contain all known facts and best founded speculation on Crabb's last mysterious exploit.

The University of British Columbia library contains more than 320,000 volumes and houses an art gallery, an anthropological museum and a fine arts workshop.

Handsome Encyclopedia Edition Keeps Pace With Former Standards and Modern Ideas

Latest edition of World Book Encyclopedia, which has recently been issued by its publishers, Field Enterprises Ltd., Chicago, maintains the high standard which has come to be synonymous with this particular publication.

In keeping with the modern concept of visual education, World Book appears to have expanded its policy of copious illustration and the plates, both black and white and colored, are handsome, clear and astutely chosen to best illustrate the salient features of the various articles.

There are numberless maps, easily read and mostly in full color together with masses of geographic detail. The graphic method is extensively used to present statistics, products, comparisons and leading world events.

Arrangement and vocabulary used in the articles are such that the lay mind, and adolescent, can easily cope with and comprehend such technically abstruse subjects as aerodynamics, atomic energy and so forth.

Wherever indicated, treatment is slanted to the youthful intellect and a special accompanying booklet titled "The Lookies" provides a lively key to the 18 volumes for the ever-querying mind of the child.

Choice of a career and things to do and look for month-by-month throughout the year are discussed and cross-referenced in another accompanying booklet.

No searching through a massive index is necessary when referring to World Book because of a system of listing related subjects as an addenda to an article. For example a glance at "Amusements" in the first volume will refer you to baroque, circus, conjuring, drama, fireworks and television among about three dozen other items.

The publishers have sensibly appears—sacrificed uniformity of size to a unit letter volume arrangement. Articles under A, B and so forth are complete, each within one volume. Volume 19 is a reading and study guide to the whole encyclopedia.

An impressive list of more than 1,600 authorities have contributed to or edited the articles.

Of lesser importance, but a decided attraction nevertheless, is the pleasing format and quality of materials involved.

For those handsome new shelves in the knotty pine wall of the ranch house study, the set is available in elegant creamy white, imprinted with black and gold.

THE STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

Our booklets continue to make news these days. The new 5c booklet reported in last week's column was to have been followed by one containing a pane of six 4c stamps; in fact it did make its appearance in Ottawa a couple of months ago.

But the latest word is that it is to be scrapped! In its place we are having a new type containing a pane of five 4c and a pane of five 1c stamps. These will, like the current panes of 5c stamps, be printed in sixes, but the lower left corners will be blanks, to make five a pane.

The University of British Columbia offers instruction in the faculties of Arts and Science, Applied Science, Agriculture, Law, Pharmacy, Medicine, Forestry, Education, Commerce and Graduate Studies.

Why this sudden changeover was made without giving the 4c booklet a trial has not been explained so far. Perhaps the department had a twinge of conscience at the idea of only giving us 24c worth of stamps for our quarter. More likely, it was realized that booklets containing only 4c stamps would not be very popular as they would limit the buyer to sending local mail only. With the extra cents added they are equally useful for mailing out of town letters.

It is most unusual for a stamp to be withdrawn so soon after issue that we don't have time to receive a supply at the local post office. The big question for collectors is, will they be rare? They are offered on the lists of stamps still available at Ottawa, and probably they will have sufficient supplies there to last for a while. But no time should be lost in sending for them.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT Poet's Latest

Rascality Among Holy Men On India's Sacred Ganges

Perhaps it is a product of "the new India," but whatever the reason, a new kind of yarn about that part of the world is making its appearance these days. Not so long ago this space reported on The House At Adampur, a different kind of tale about Indian life. Now comes The Seven Islands, by Jon Godden, which is as refreshing and amusing reading as anybody would want.

The Seven Islands belongs to that genre of fiction which revolves around very holy and very good men who are justly touched by rascality. This kind of fictional hero is common enough but this is the first time I have come across an Indian one.

The Sadhu, who is the central figure in this story, has retreated from the world in the usual custom of Indian holy men. He has been so long divorced from mundane things that nobody even knows his name. He is schooled in the art of contemplation and is renowned for his great pious wisdom.

Such a man through the rigorous course of Indian introspection is now—or ought to be—divorced from all the nasty material considerations of this very imperfect world.

COMES A RIVAL

His temple and abode is on one of a little knot-of-seven islands in the holy Ganges. Into this group of islands comes a rival holy man one who apparently is not so remote and has great plans for setting up an elaborate colony of religious men. This does not particularly disturb the Sadhu; he is far above being jealous of rivals.

However when he hears that the rivals are so ambitious that they will need more than one island and have their eyes on one which has always been a sanctuary for all kinds of birds, he swings into action.

The schemes which he concocts to rid the seven islands of the rival holy men would suggest that he has never been quite so divorced from the real world as had been supposed. They are fertile, ingenious and he swings into action.

Wilson who was also a late starter and who also has a new novel scheduled for this fall. Since Mrs. Wilson has become about my favorite Canadian novelist I have great respect for writers who start late.

Finally, he decides he had better do what he should have done in the first place—i.e. put his trust in God. With startling and dramatic suddenness the Lord takes over and sets everything right and no great harm done to anybody.

This is a slight but very clever tale. It is told with a light touch and considerable understanding of human foibles. Add to this the piquancy which the Indian setting brings to the story and you have unusual and enjoyable reading.

WEST COAST RENAISSANCE

It would seem that the literary life of the Pacific Coast is just about the most vigorous in the whole country these days. Always there have been good writers in that area but right now they are stepping nicely out in front of all regional competitors.

Up to date, only one eastern Canadian writer has been singled out for recognition in the Maclean's Fiction Contest. Recent winner was John Cornish of Vancouver, and right on top of that comes the announcement that James McNamee of New Westminster has also been given the $5,000 nod for a novel called Florence Bay.

All I can find out about the book at this point is that it is about a disillusioned prospector which could mean just about anything. The publishers, however, have a lot to say about the author who has had what is commonly called a very checked career.

For that matter, most authors do. What I do find interesting about this man is that he is writing his first successful novel at the age of 50. That, if I am not mistaken, will give heart to more than one hopeful. But it is not the first time it has happened on the West Coast. I am thinking of Ethel

Alfred Noyes has a new collection of poems ready. He has given them the title A Letter to Lucian. They are the work of the last six years, and range from humorous ballads with a satirical element to serious assessments of the modern world. They are written around that clear element of song which has made so many of Mr. Noyes's poems popular.

HOLLYWOOD TODAY

Erskine Raps Black-White Theatre Ads

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD (N.E.A.) — Close-ups and Longshots: There's a "For Adults Only" restriction on the film version of "The Bad Seed" in Chicago and I agree with Producer-Director Mervyn LeRoy that it's pretty much "sheer nonsense." The play ran in Chicago for six months without censorship and the movie is a carbon copy of the footlight version.

But when the protesting LeRoy says "The Bad Seed" is "basically a love story," well—maybe that's one of the things wrong with Hollywood that's alienating movie audiences. Let's face it—the film is about an eight-year-old girl who is a murderer, presumably a hereditary inclination. It isn't a love story.

And it isn't a movie for children.

It is a movie that should carry a voluntary Hollywood label "For Adults Only." As such, I believe it could be a tremendous box office hit. Now, since the Chicago banning, I hear the advertisements will be changed to play down the eight-year-old murderer angle.

Once again Hollywood is calling black white, and parents of children who do see the film in other cities again will be shocked by Hollywood's false advertising.

A horror tale just can't be called "a love story."

Ernest Borgnine and Anna Magnani as a co-starring team in "Getaway" is the best sounding casting news in some time. A modern Min and Bill... TV commercials will be filmed by 20th Century-Fox studio in the latest move of a major studio to cash in on home screens... Smiley Burnette swears he saw this sign on a garden gate in Beverly Hills: "Beware, Neurotic Dog." Dorothy Lamour gave up waiting for a telefilm series and is leaving town for a six-month night club singing tour.

The "Noah's Ark" coming up as Jack Webb's next telefilm series is a tale about a veterinarian. Only a direction chore for Webb, though... Don Avalor says he quit eating Chinese fortune cookies the other day when he broke one open and read: "You'll be successful in business in 1937"... A vest pocket TV camera weighing only 24 ounces is being used for the first time at the national political conventions.

Ava Gardner and Stewart Granger, it's said, exchange 42 kisses in six minutes in "Bhowani Junction." A real whistle stop... Movie ad line Hollywood should forget: "Among Big pictures, this is one of the BIGGEST." A yawn by now to almost everybody.

This is Hollywood, Mrs. Jones: Hollywood, signing a graduate of the Russian Imperial Ballet to do the dances on the movie, "Shake, Rattle and Rock."

The Witnet: Army Archerd's tale about the Hollywood tourist who couldn't pay his bill in a French sidewalk cafe—so they threw him in.

Not in the script: George Gobel about Diana Dors: "She's quite a girl-ful."

THE WEEKEND

Lions-Argos Game Sunday on 2 at 2

A delayed view of the exhibition football game between the B.C. Lions and the Toronto Argonauts and a bevy of pre-GOP convention shows are the highlights of weekend viewing.

Here they are in order of their appearance.

TONIGHT

6.00: Channel 5: The feature race from Longacres.

7.00: Channel 5: Convention City takes viewers on a half-hour tour of GOP Convention Headquarters, San Francisco's famed Cow Palace. John Daly is emcee.

Channel 11: Beat the Clock's rugged stunt is worth $53,000 tonight if successfully completed.

8.00: Channel 4: Tony Bennett plays host to soprano Elaine Malbin, the Singing Vagabonds, comic Chaz Chase, the Four Lads and others.

Channel 11: Jackie Gleason's repeat is "Mama Loves Mambo," wherein the ladies in the Krampen apartment are fit to swoon after the new tenant turns out to be a handsome dance instructor. The Channel 4 drama is about how Ralphie sidesteps dog food for a new "wonder food."

8.30: Channel 11: Stage Show has the Dorsey brothers introducing comic Larry Storch and the Seven Ashtons, an acrobatic group. On Channel 2 it is comic Lew Parker; singer Sarah Vaughan and the June Taylor Dancers who are on display.

9.00: Channel 5: Lawrence Welk and his favorite band.

Channel 11: Sam Levenson and the quiz show, Two for the Money.

9.30: Channels 11 and 12: Russ Morgan and his band host the Billy Williams Quartet. Nifty thrush Helen O'Connell will also be on hand to give out with "That Certain Feeling" and "Star Eyes."

10.00: Channels 11 and 12: An elderly woman unknowingly befriends an outlaw.

Channel 4: In Encore Theatre's "I'll Be Waiting" a couple tests its love by separating for a year.

Channel 2: Alfred Hitchcock's weekly thriller.

SUNDAY

1.00: Channel 5: Campaign Roundup originates from the GOP Convention city, San Francisco.

1.30: Channels 11 and 12: Bandwagon '56 covers the highlights of the 1952 GOP convention.

2.00: Channel 2: Here is the delayed telecast of the exhibition football game between the B.C. Lions and the Toronto Argonauts.

Channel 4: Chet Huntley and his crew are seen in San Francisco to give a pre-convention slant on Republican activities.

Channel 11: Face the Nation also originates in San Francisco's Cow Palace. Former governor of New York, Thomas E. Dewey, will face the panel of newsmen.

2.30: Channels 11 and 12: A roundup of political news on the eve of the GOP convention.

4.30: Channel 5: These Are the Men treats with leading personalities in the forthcoming GOP convention.

5.30: Channel 11: Telephone Time tells the story of "Emperor Norton," who proclaimed himself the emperor of San Francisco and dreams of building a bridge across the bay.

6.00: Channel 11: You Are There covers the "Sinking of the Titanic," April 14, 1912.

7.00: Channels 11 and 12: In Private Secretary, Susie incurs the wrath of her boss.

8.00: Channel 4: Frontier's western drama is called "Patrol," about nine men who learn long after the event that the U.S. Civil War has broken out. It splits their ranks.

Channel 11: What's My Line? hosts Frank Sinatra, Julius La Rosa, Mammie Van Doren, comic Don Adams, the dance team of Eddie and Margo, and humorist Eddie Lawrence.

Channel 11: Ed Sullivan hosts performing elephant "Little Mo," singing comedienne Jeanne Carson, the dance team of Kovac and Rabovsky, singer Don Cornell and aerialist Pinto Del Oro.

9.00: Channel 4: Alcoa Hour shows "The Big Vote," a 60-minute drama about an old time political boss who believes first, last and always in his party.

Channel 5: Amatuer Hour sees Ted Mack saluting Tacoma, Wash.

Channel 11: GE Theatre stars Ronald Reagan and Kim Hunter in "Try to Remember." A detective hunts up the person who murdered a door-to-door salesman.

9.30: Channel 11: Alfred Hitchcock features John Forsythe and Gloria Leachman in "Promotion." A young pianist returns home to find his father dead and he himself most unwelcome.

10.00: Channel 2: Explorations deals with "Spotlight on Indo-China."

Channel 11: The $64,000 Challenge.

1.00: Channel 5: Campaign Roundup originates from the GOP Convention city, San Francisco.

GOP FIGURES—As the Republican Party convention gets under way in San Francisco's Cow Palace, Monday, TV cameras doubtless will be concentrating on GOP leaders above. From left to right: President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, the vice-president so heavily under fire by Democrats; Harold Stassen, who is backing the nomination of Nixon; and Gov. Arthur Langlie, who will make the "key-note" speech. Drawings by Julius Kroll, N.Y. Herald-Tribune.

NOT THE TYPE?

TV May Give June Lockhart Another Hollywood Chance

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What does a beautiful and talented young actress do when Hollywood tells her she's not the type?

June Lockhart went to New York and became a star in television dramas and a panelist on the quiz shows Down You Go and Who Said That?

Now she's back on the sound stages doing a film which, though it's for TV, could mean a rebirth of her Hollywood career. She's co-starring with Dennis O'Keefe in one of CBS' Playhouse 90 hour-and-a-half plays starting on the air in October.

The surroundings are familiar for June, who inherited her acting ability from her parents, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart. She made her movie debut at 12—after dancing at the Metropolitan Opera at 8. Her pictures as a teen-ager included All This and Heaven Too, Sergeant York and Meet Me in St. Louis.

But then, she recalled, producers and casting directors "said I wasn't the Hollywood type."

June went to New York—and got rave reviews in the play For Love or Money. It ran a full season on Broadway. Television opened its doors, and June's life became hectic.

Though she now is a veteran of live TV, this is only her second TV film. She prefers the live kind, despite its hazards of muffed lines and quick costume changes. Hollywood now is a greener field than New York for newcomers.

MOST AMUSEMENT PARKS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FEATURE A FERRIS WHEEL BUT NONE OF THEM WOULD SURPRISE THE ORIGINATOR GEORGE FERRIS WITH ANY NEW FEATURE AND CERTAINLY NOT BY SIZE. THE GRAND-DADDY OF THEM ALL WAS BUILT IN 1893 FOR THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION IN CHICAGO. THE SIZE OF THE WHEEL BRINGS AMAZEMENT EVEN BY TODAY'S STANDARDS. IT STOOD AS HIGH AS A 21 STOREY BUILDING AND HAD SEATS FOR 1440 PEOPLE. ITS PROMOTERS KEPT THEIR FINGERS CROSSED AS THEY PAID THE CONSTRUCTION COST OF OVER $500,000. THE GIANT WHEEL WAS AN ENGINEERING MARVEL AND ALTHOUGH IT WAS USED ONLY DURING THE EXPOSITION IT MADE A PROFIT.

WHEN FERRIS BUILT HIS GIANT WHEEL JOSEPH HEANEY HAD BEEN IN BUSINESS FOR THREE YEARS IN VICTORIA. HE WAS WELL STARTED WITH HORSES AND WAGONS AND CONDUCTING A MOVING SERVICE THAT WAS POPULAR WITH EARLY DAY VICTORIA PEOPLE. # GOP and Top Programs Too! Smith Defends Title Friday

Janet Blair Emcees Tuesday Musical; Republicans Cast Votes Wednesday

Viewers can relax. Although the Republican convention will run all week the times are such that they will be able to watch the highlights of the GOP meeting in San Francisco and take in most of their favorite programs as well.

In addition to the convention there is a championship fight and what promises to be a lighthearted hour-long variety show. But here are the highlights in order of their appearance.

MONDAY

11 a.m.: Channels 4, 5, 11 and 12: Republican Convention: This sitting will be devoted mainly to organizational procedures.
4:00: Channels 4, 5, 11, 12: Republican Convention: Gov. Arthur B. Langle of Washington is expected to deliver the keynote address of the convention. Sen. William F. Knowland of California is also expected to be heard in his role of temporary chairman.
8:00: Channel 5: Bold Journey is slated to show "Tuna Pilot." A California businessman shows film depicting his adventures as a spotter pilot for a tuna clipper.
Channel 4: Ernie Kovacs will host singer Yma Sumac and actor Boris Karloff.
8:30: Channel 5: The Firestone Concert half-hour.
11:30: Channel 2: Movie: Turhan Bey and Lynn Bari are seen in "The Amazing Mr. X." A medium tells a widow he can communicate with her husband.
Channel 4: Rudy Valle takes over for Steve Allen on his Tonight program.

TUESDAY

3:30: Channels 4, 5, 11, 12: Republican Convention: The third GOP sitting features the report from the credentials committee, the permanent organization committee, an address by Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., and Mrs. Bertha S. Adkins. Former President Herbert Hoover is also expected to address delegates.
7:00: Channels 11 and 12: Young baseball expert Marjorie Gamie is star of the $64,000 Question. Already she has won $16,000. The twin sisters will try to double the $4,000 already won.

WEDNESDAY

3:30: Channels 4, 5, 11, 12: Republican Convention: This is the main business of the convention—the naming of a presidential candidate. There will be a roll call of the states, a total of 662 votes being needed to win the nomination. If President Eisenhower doesn't win who will?

7:00: Channel 5: Boxing: Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico fights Gabriel Flash Eldore of the Philippines in a 10-round featherweight contest. Berrios is rated No. 10 in his division while Eldore holds down the fourth-ranking spot.

Channels 11 and 12: 20th Century-Fox presents Cameron Mitchell and Sylvia Sydney in "Man on the Ledge." A man, broken-hearted over a dismal romance, would jump from the ledge of a skyscraper window.

9:00: Channel 4: Kraft Theatre is slated to show what it was supposed to show last week—a condensed version of the English film, "The Magic Box." This was an excellent movie on the line.

THURSDAY

3:30: Channels 4, 5, 11, 12: Republican Convention: Party's nominees for president and vice-president are expected to make their acceptance speeches.

7:00: Channel 4: Ford Theatre stars Jeanne Crain and John Hudson in "Airborne Honey-moon." A man helps a gal out by pretending to be her hubby so she can get on a plane for half-fare. Trouble is, the man's got a fiancée awaiting him. This is a repeat... a far-fetched repeat, at that.

FRIDAY

7:00: Channel 4: Boxing: Wallace Bud Smith, lightweight champion of the world, will defend his title against 8th-ranked title fight Brown defeated Smith recently but Smith is said to fight best when his crown is against challenger Joe Brown.

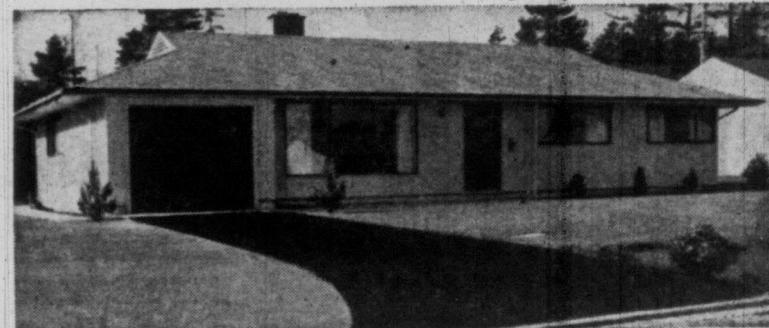

TITLE FIGHTS—On Friday, Channel 4 at 8, world lightweight champion Wallace Bud Smith will defend his crown against challenger Joe Brown.

Tomatoes and Grape Bad Greenhouse Companions

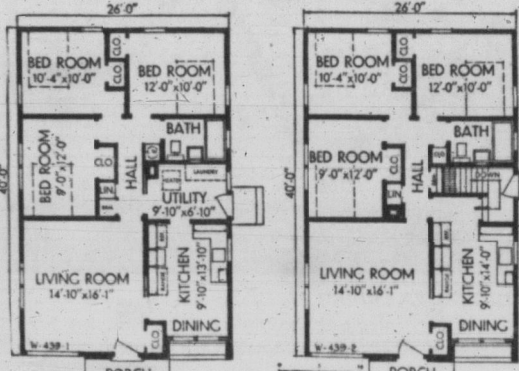

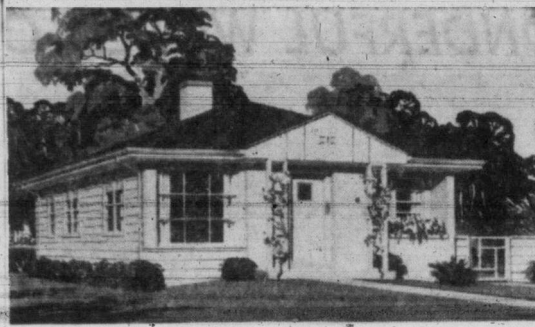

By JACK BEASTALL

Q.—I have tomatoes growing in a greenhouse but the fruit is not ripening. The temperature often registers 85 deg. although there is a grape vine trained to the roof and the glass is covered with summer shading. Can you tell me if I need heat at night to get them to ripen?

A.—Heat at night is certainly not necessary this August for ripening tomatoes in a greenhouse, but the shading and grape vine combined are not letting in sufficient direct sun rays. The house would doubtless take several hours to warm in the morning, and on a dull day probably not reach 60 deg. F. While the grape vine requires shaded glass to prevent scorching, tomatoes need sunlight to ripen, therefore these two crops are not a good greenhouse combination.

In over-roofing with cedar shingles, it is wasteful and unnecessary to strip off the old shingles. Instead, the new shingles can be applied directly over the old.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Remove all faded flowers from dahlias required for fall shows, in order to keep plants producing flower buds.

Pot an early batch of hyacinths, paper white narcissi and lachenalia as soon as available. These will have a chance of flowering for Christmas.

Repot Persian cyclamen corms for Christmas flowering.

Valotta (Scarboro Lily) in pots may be fed and watered more often as flower spikes appear.

Pot on Winter blooming primulas and cinerarias as they require it.

Pick the early varieties of apples as soon as ready. Do not allow to fall, as damaged fruit loses quality.

Pick bush and runner beans regularly while very young.

Give ample moisture to squash, celery and beans.

Sow few seed of winter varieties of lettuce for growing in a cold frame or cloche.

Trim hedges of box, laurel, privet and the hedge honeysuckle, Lonicera nitida.

Thanks to technological progress, today we can produce on 20 to 25 million acres about the same amount of cotton as we produced on 40 million acres 25 years ago.

Considering the rapid building up of most new subdivisions and consequent narrowing of lot sizes, a plan especially devised for 50 and 60-foot widths with 2000 garden allowance, should be welcome to many prospective home builders.

Illustrated here is a three-bedroom home which encompasses all the desirable ranch-style features, including open living-dining-kitchen arrangement.

The lateral design is given a long, low harmony of line through the exterior use of horizontal siding with narrow Roman tile, low-pitched roof and flattened front gable.

The living room is large, the kitchen conveniently planned, and a central hall gives easy access to all rooms and conveniences.

Plans with or without basement, as shown, can be obtained by writing The Loder Company Ltd., Revillon Building, Edmonton, Living area for both types contains 1,020 square feet.

A drawer that's stuck can sometimes be opened with the aid of a rubber force cup of the type used in cleaning sink drains, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. The tool is most commonly known as a "plumber's helper."

Store ladders horizontally with enough support to prevent sagging.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Prepare for Harvest Storage With Cleaning and Disinfectant

By JACK BEASTALL

Any spare minutes after the August gardening jobs are completed can be put to good use preparing for the September harvesting.

Those gardeners fortunate enough to have a special storage room for fruits and vegetables should get it ready to receive the fall crops before harvesting commences.

Washing the entire room and fixtures with a disinfectant and water will destroy a lot of disease spores left from last season's crops, and with the present weather the room can be well aired when the job is finished.

Boxes and trays used for storing apples and pears should also be washed and exposed to sunlight for a few days.

Most gardeners use the same

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—We paved our garden walk with bricks set in sand. That was two years ago and already many of the bricks have disintegrated, turning to powder, even though the walk isn't used a great deal. What causes this?—M. K.

A.—Winter's rain-freeze-thaw cycle tends to make some of the softer types of brick go to pieces. There's nothing much you can do about it except replace them with new and harder brick, which will almost certainly be a different color. The harder bricks are a darker red and give a clear, high-pitched ring when struck with a hammer.

sacks for potatoes year after year. Unless these are disinfected there is a chance of carrying over disease from one crop to the next.

Considering the time and energy we invest in trying to produce good and healthy crops, preparation for their storage is a form of insurance which warrants our attention.

HERBS FOR WINTER

During the winter months a dash of herbs will give zest to many a meal. Dried herbs are used in most instances, but fresh herbs would be welcome if available.

A few parsley seed sown into three or four medium-size pots will give a good supply of fresh parsley as needed.

The seed can be germinated in a sunporch or on a sunny window sill, and the pots buried in a sheltered border outside once the seedlings are established.

Fresh mint is often desired by the cook and can be supplied if a few roots are placed in large pots or deep tin cans. Cut back the top growth to about three inches to encourage bushy plants with plenty of succulent tips for cutting.

Chives are another favorite for salads, soups and sandwiches. Clumps may be dug now, divided, and placed in pots for a winter supply.

GLASS PROTECTION

Burying the pots in a sheltered border will suit them all at this time of year. Later, the protection of glass or a cold frame will keep the plants in good condition until a few weeks before they are needed, after which greenhouses or indoor conditions will soon have them growing strongly.

Make up three or four pots of each but take indoors only one at a time so that the supply will be fresh throughout the winter. The sooner this work is done the better the plants will be established before the good weather ends.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—In painting our window sash, we used masking tape to keep paint off the glass. It seems we left it on too long and it's now difficult to remove, even with a razor blade. Can you suggest an easier way?

A.—The sun's rays and heat have "vulcanized" the masking tape's rubber adhesive to the glass. The tape should have been removed as soon as the paint set. Try saturating the tape with benzol applied with a ball of cotton. Benzol, however, is highly flammable. Don't use it in the vicinity of fire or intense heat. Don't smoke while using it.

Only rust-resistant nails should be used in applying cedar shingles. Satisfactory nails of the proper shape and size are available at all lumber dealers.

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

How often have you heard it said: That guy's got it where he needs it—inside. "Inside" is where the heart is, and it often takes more than muscle to reach the top. That more, in sport, is "heart," an indefinable secret to success.

Victoria fans sat in on two examples here recently when the U.S. Davis Cup team played its North American tennis tie against Canada.

Non-playing captain Billy Talbot of the U.S. team, long has suffered from a serious case of diabetes. Yet he was one of the top doubles players of his day.

Ham Richardson of the American team also is a diabetic, and if you had watched closely, you would have noticed that Ham's sustenance during the match was a specially prepared solution.

Shamrock goalie George Johnston had a serious operation for a perforated ulcer this year, yet has come back stronger than ever in goal for the Irish.

Forward Archie Browning suffers agony from ulcers, but will anyone argue that he isn't one of the best lacrosse players of the present day.

Ben Hogan's case in golf is a classic. Recently Ben was named "man of the decade" in sport by Sport Magazine. Ben was one of the best before an auto accident in 1949 which almost claimed his life. But then, hobbling on crippled legs, he rose to even greater glory and captured three more U.S. Open golf crowns, and also the British Open at Carnoustie.

Babe Zaharias recovered from one cancer operation to return and win the U.S. Ladies' Open golf championship. Now she battles on against cancer again.

Walt Burkemo was twice wounded and spent a year in hospital, only to mark his post-war comeback with a victory in the PGA championship.

Five years ago, Don Bessent of the Brooklyn Dodgers was paralyzed from the waist down. Now he is a Dodger relief specialist.

Gene Bearden, now in the Coast League, was once a hero for Cleveland Indians; but Gene, for a time, didn't know if he would live, let alone play baseball again. He spent two years in hospital getting a plate in his head after being seriously injured when his ship was torpedoed.

It was doubtful if the Shamrocks' Allan Gill would play again after suffering a serious blow to the head during the Mann Cup playdowns here three years ago. Now Allan is one of the brightest stars on the Rock roster today.

Lou Brissie, who made the majors with Philadelphia Athletics, had the amazing total of 23 operations on his leg before he attained baseball success.

Don Zimmer, who was hit on the head with a pitched ball in a recent major league game, and now is recuperating, was once unconscious 13 days after being beamed. An operation then saved him from paralysis; and he returned to star with the Dodgers.

Golf's Ed Furgol has one withered arm, yet he won the U.S. Open.

Vic Lea of Uplands Golf Club went to the finals of the Times Island match play golf championship this year, but a little known fact is that Vic can't hold the club like other golfers. His hands are badly crippled from illness, so badly that one finger is the only control he has with one hand.

There are many others, and they're living examples of sport's best standby:

"If you won't be beat, you can't be beat."

Bob Picks Right Spot To Score First Goal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bob McKee scored his first goal of senior competition Friday night and it proved to be the winner as Victoria Shamrocks defeated Vancouver Pilseners, 7-5, in the last game of the Intercity Lacrosse League.

The Shamrocks, who led most of the way, had to come from behind in the last period to gain the win. After Mario Crema had tied the score in the fourth period John Cervi put the Pilseners ahead 5-4.

A goal by Lou Landess tied the score at 5-5. McKee then put the Shamrocks ahead 6-5. Ed Longpre added the clincher.

The teams now meet in a best-of-five semifinal with the first game here Tuesday. Winner of the series meets Nanaimo Timbermen.

Other Vancouver scorers Friday were Joe Durante, Larry Crema.

SOCCER WORKOUT

Esquimalt's senior "A" soccer team of the Victoria District League will hold a workout Sunday morning at 10:30 at Bullen Park.

All last year's players, and all those interested, are asked to attend.

Marlene Meets Pat For Title

By Canadian Press
WINNIPEG (CP)—Two of North America's leading women golfers tee off today in the Canadian Women's Open golf championship 36-hole final over the Niakwa Country Club course.

Defending champion Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., seeking her third straight title, takes on Pat Lesser of Seattle, runner-up in the recent U.S. Open and defending U.S. amateur champion. Miss Stewart also is holder of the Canadian women's closed crown and U.S. collegiate title.

While Miss Stewart coasted to an easy 6 and 5 victory over Rae Milligan of Jasper, Alta., in one semi-final Friday, Miss Lesser had to go all the way to the 18th green before winning one-up over 19-year-old Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan.

BIG 1953 COMEBACK

The two finalists haven't met since 1953, and Miss Lesser says it was a game she never will forget. Playing in the same event—but not in the finals—the American girl was three up with four holes left. Marlene took them all.

But Miss Lesser has come a long way since then, and she feels her game has much improved.

The first 18 holes of the final was scheduled to get under way at 9:30 a.m. CDT. Tee-off time for the second 18 was set for 2 p.m.

A putter, which had behaved beautifully all day, turned against Miss Bell on the 17th and 18th greens as she lost her one-up lead and dropped the match to Miss Lesser.

Miss Lesser's game-winning chip over a gully in front of the 18th green was one of the prettiest shots of the contest as it left her with an easy birdie four.

Miss Stewart had all her shots working to perfection as she won four of the first six holes and made the turn two up. Miss Milligan, showing consistency only on her wood shots, captured only the seventh and ninth holes.

ALWAYS NEXT YEAR

Ed Just Can't Seem To Do It

By BILL RAYNER

For Ed Eisenhower, it always seems to be next year in the annual Seniors' Northwest Golf Association championships.

For Friday at Victoria Golf Club, the Tacoma lawyer reached his sixth championship final, and lost for the sixth time.

This time it was fellow townsman Corydon Wagner, playing in his first final, who defeated Eisenhower on the 19th green after Ed had "blown up" on the final holes.

Three down with just four holes to play after losing the 12th, and halving the 13th and 14th, Wagner struggled back gamely to win the 15th and 16th.

After halving the 17th with par fives, Eisenhower was still one up when he boomed a powerful drive down the 18th fairway.

He sliced his second shot over onto the 13th fairway, however, dumped his approach into the rocks behind the green, and was short with his recovery.

He then two-putted from the edge of the green for an embarrassing six.

IN THE ROUGH

Wagner was in the rough with his drive but knocked his second up to the right of the green. He was on with this third and two-putted to win the hole and square the match.

Driving off the first tee to play the extra hole, Eisenhower put his second in a sand trap to the right of the green while Wagner's second was in a hollow short of the green.

Eisenhower's recovery was short; Wagner dumped his fourth into a trap; Eisenhower's fourth was underclubbed to go about five feet; Wagner blasted out of the trap to within 15 feet of the pin and Eisenhower put his fifth to within six feet of the hole.

Wagner then putted right up to the lip of the cup and Eisenhower, putting half-heartedly, was well short and took a horrible seven to lose the hole and the match to Wagner's six.

Hotelmen Needed All Their Wives

Gorge Hotel 2, South Hill 1

VANCOUVER (Special)—Victoria's Gorge Hotel had to muster up all the wife of the defending champion it is Friday night to defeat South Hill Athletics, 2-1, in the opening game of the B.C. senior A men's softball championships at Vancouver's Capilano Stadium.

The Hotelmen, defending provincial champs for the second straight year, came through with two runs in the top of the ninth inning for the victory.

They will meet Castlegar Cubs today, with Barry Jackson going on the mound.

Big Ed Foychuk, who had a 121 season record, set the Athletics down on four hits and struck out 11. He walked but one man.

The ninth-inning uprising came when Bernie Clarkson walked and was sacrificed to second. He then scored on Flori Goegan's single.

Goegan then scored on two wild throws at second and third as the Athletics tried to pick him off.

Athletics rallied briefly in the bottom of the ninth, scoring their only run on a homer.

In Friday's other contest, New Westminster Royals defeated Vancouver by the same score, 2-1.

The double-knockout tournament will wind up Sunday at the Vancouver park.

BETTER HOPE NOBODY BREAKS A RECORD

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. track and field championships will be held today and Sunday with one stop watch missing.

Lloyd Swindells, who is supplying the watches for the meet, had the watch and some personal track equipment stolen from his car Wednesday night.

He said he had borrowed four watches from UBC and luckily left the other three with a friend.

Also stolen was a white traveling bag, green sweat suit, running shoes, vest, and a briefcase.

Mr. Swindells is manager of the Vancouver Olympic Club.

Soccer Returns Today To U.K. Sports Scene

LONDON (Reuters)—More than a million fans will be lured away today from TV accounts of the final test cricket match between England and Australia to flock to stadiums all over the country for the opening matches of their favorite sport, soccer.

Cricket is considered the national game, but many more Englishmen watch soccer than cricket.

There are two reasons for this. Soccer is more exciting to watch and it lends itself to betting. An estimated 15,000,000 Britons will be watching the results today to see if they won money in one of the many soccer pools. Gambling is legal in Britain and the prizes are tax free.

Today, 92 teams will open a season that will last until April. Manchester United is the defending champion in the First Division and must beat 21 other clubs to retain the title. There are also Second and Third Divisions in the league with a total of 68 teams in the three.

ALSO CUP PLAY

During a season, each team plays each other in its division twice. There is also an elimination tournament going on at the same time. Non-league teams and Third Division teams will compete for berths and then the survivors will tangle with Second and First Division clubs until all but two are eliminated. These play for the Football Association Cup.

In last season's cup final, the hero of the game was goalkeeper Bert Trautmann of Manchester City, who broke his neck defending the net in a 3-1 victory over Birmingham. Trautmann became a national hero and was named "footballer of the year." Trautmann was a Nazi paratrooper in the war.

Deciding game of the series will be played at Heywood park on Sunday at 6:30.

Southpaw Gets Nod Tonight

Coach Ed Ash will go with lefty Bill Garner when Victoria Farmer Construction meets Vancouver White Spots in tonight's Northwest International League contest at Athletic Park.

Construction will be trying to climb out of fourth place, while White Spots will be looking to improve their fifth-place position in the circuit.

Game time is 7:30.

Aussies Behind

SOUTHEAST, Eng. (UP)—In a wind that was almost at gale force, Essex opened the batting in their match against the Australian cricketers here today and at the lunch interval were 101 for four wickets.

U.S. Better Find Answer To This Russian Tactic

By OSCAR FRALEY (United Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (UP)—The U.S. Olympic committee had better get on the ball today and start paging Marilyn Munroe, Jane Russell and Ava Gardner for duty at the international games down under in November.

Any athlete will tell you that for a peak performance he needs an added bit of inspiration. It requires more than mere muscles to break world records.

The Russians already have discovered—and applied—this factor.

Word of this is relayed from London by Bob Musel, the Foster Dulles of United Press foreign sports affairs. Musel, an ex-weight lifter, is a great admirer of both beauties and beasts. Thus he keeps a cautious eye on the Soviet strong men and the other, the appreciative eye, on the ladies.

So he reports with some alarm that, at a recent Moscow track meet, Soviet film star Tamara Makarova arose and offered her bouquet of flowers to the man who made the farthest javelin throw.

Vladimir Kuznetsov promptly broke the Soviet record with a heave of 258 feet four inches.

That's 28 feet farther than the palpitating Vladimir tossed the spear four years ago when he finished sixth behind Cy Young of the United States. And Young's Olympic record at Helsinki was 16 feet less than Vladimir's inspired heave.

So it behooves the U.S. Olympic fathers to get a bit of inspiration on hand for our guys, too. Imagine what would happen if Marilyn, Jane and Ava stood at the finish line and, going the Russians one better, offered a smooch to every Yankee winner.

Our sprinters would go so fast they'd make the opposition look like they ought to be clocked with calendars. Parry O'Brien would sling the shot into the upper deck and Bob Richards would probably pole vault clear out of the stadium, winning the marathon on his way back to collect his reward.

An extra bit of inspiration often is necessary in addition to mere nationalism, even though with Musel that usually is enough. Like the day we were in the Russian Olympic village at Helsinki and a watchful commissar learned that some of Bob's antecedents hailed from Russia.

"Always remember mother Russia," the commissar told him.

"Listen, Mac," growled the indignant Musel, "I'll have you know I'm a hunnert per cent Yank from Brooklyn, U.S.A."

As somebody or other once said, blood will tell. But Musel figures if you heat the corpuscles a bit it will tell a lot more.

The Russians seem to have proved as much.

If Miss Makarova can produce a record with a bunch of flowers, our guys ought to rewrite the record books with a victory huss from Marilyn, Jane and Ava. As a matter of fact, I'd compete myself.

Archbishop To Speak On Teeners

The Lord Archbishop, Most Rev. H. E. Sexton, will preach at Evensong Sunday from Christ Church Cathedral pulpit on the question of "Teen-agers and Religion."

In a parish leaflet message, the Archbishop observes:

"One of our local newspapers has recently given expression to the opinion of teen-agers on a number of questions, including religion and public worship. If it be true that judgment is born of experience, we doubt the wisdom of seeking the obviously immature opinions of young students on the important matter of religion."

YOU SAID TO ME—

A Sunday message of help and comfort for those puzzled, depressed or low in spirit.
By ETHEL TULL

You said to me, "It isn't necessary for me to have such quiet times with God; I know He is with me all the day, and I don't feel worried if I forget to say my prayers."

And yet you are at your wits' end to know how to remedy a wrong relationship in your home, and though God is so close to you, you have never heard Him say that the fault lay partly with yourself.

There is absolutely no situation in life which you cannot meet if you are listening to God. I used to think that I was right in any disagreement I might have with another person, and I would turn the thing over and over in my mind to reassure myself of my right to feel resentment. How stupid and wrong I was! What good did my cherished resentment do me? Real love would have acknowledged the wrong in myself and put that right so far as possible.

Someone we knew had a very bitter disagreement with his brother, but when he listened to God he knew that he must apologize for his own share in the bad feeling, even though it was true that 75 per cent of the blame belonged to his brother. "Put your own part right," said the prompting voice. "You are responsible for that." He saw this was right and obeyed the voice, lost his resentment and won his brother's respect.

"What, make myself a doormat? Not me!" cried another acquaintance, as she clung to a resentment that was poisoning her life, spiritually and physically.

We Christians are out to win the whole world for the control of God, and the matter is so urgent that it's not enough to say vaguely "I know God is with me." I have to listen to what He says, and obey what I hear, no matter how unpleasant or irksome it may seem to be. If I am uncertain, I must check my guidance with a trustworthy friend, but I shall always know very surely that God will never direct me to any action that is not according to the pattern set by Jesus Christ of absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness, and love.

Leadership Is Topic at First United

The Rev. A. I. Higgins has returned from vacation and will preach at both services in First United Church on Sunday.

The morning sermon subject is "To Whom Shall We Go?" Mr. Higgins will point out that the big issue facing the world today is that of leadership. He will examine the quality of personality and program of such world figures as Hitler, Stalin and others and deal with the question of who can satisfy the soul of man as well as that of the ideal society.

In using a stepladder, stand at least two steps from the top to avoid falling.

Dr. J. S. Baxter Conducts Series

A Bible-teaching conference will open in Central Baptist Church Sunday, with Dr. J. Sidlow Baxter, formerly pastor of the famous Charlotte Street Chapel, Edinburgh; presenting expositions entitled "Deeper Treasures of the Bible."

Dr. Baxter is one of the speakers at the English Keswick Conventions, where thousands gather annually from all parts of the world to hear Bible exposition.

The report from eastern Canadian cities is that churches have been filled night after night, says Dr. J. B. Rowell, Central Baptist pastor, and it is expected that large numbers of the people of Victoria who know of Dr. Baxter's reputation as a speaker will want to hear him.

The conference will start Sunday at the regular service hours, at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and continue on week nights from Monday to Friday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Baxter will also speak at the open-air meeting in Beacon Hill Park at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Victoria Christian Business Men's Committee, and will then proceed to the Central Baptist Church for the evening service.

CENTENNIAL DEDICATES NEW FURNISHINGS

A special service of dedication will be held at Centennial United Church on Sunday morning at 11. The choir loft and inside front of the church have been remodelled and new furnishings installed.

A new pulpit will be dedicated in memory of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Goodfellow and presented by their granddaughter, Jean.

A new communion table will be dedicated in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Chalmers and presented by her husband, Mr. Robert Chalmers, and her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Haynes.

The new choir pews will be dedicated in memory of Miss Mary A. Finlayson. The minister, Rev. Douglas B. Carr, will conduct the service and will preach on the subject, "Detour Ahead," third in summer series, "Road Signs of Life."

There will be no evening service.

Streight Induction To Be Held Tuesday

Induction service for the Rev. C. Leighton Streight, assistant minister at First United Church will be conducted Tuesday evening at 8.

The induction will be carried out by the Rev. C. Guy Mackenzie, chairman of presbytery. The Rev. Douglas Carr of Centennial United will direct the charge to the congregation, the Rev. D. R. Pilkey of Esquimalt, the charge to the minister.

A reception will be held in the Fellowship hall following the service.

Mr. Streight was born in Winnipeg, educated in Toronto, graduating from the University of Toronto and Emmanuel College. He served in the mission fields in central and southern

Conciliator for Teamsters Named

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks Friday announced the appointment of W. T. McLaughlin of Victoria as conciliator officer in disputes between Central Carriage Co. Ltd. and four other firms in Victoria, and the General Teamsters' Union Local 885.

The disputes arise over the union's requests for amendments to the existing collective agreement, involving wages, hours of work, paid statutory holidays and conditions of employment.

About 60 drivers, swamper and warehousemen are affected.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Once upon a time there was an Indignant Citizen. He was a very Indignant Citizen indeed. His indignation knew no bounds.

He was indignant at the way they were running the country. He said they did not know what they were doing, and what they were doing was nothing but bad.

He spent a great deal of his time running all around and about, telling other citizens what was wrong with the country, and how the government should run things.

He also occupied much of his time writing letters to the editor signed, of course, Indignant Citizen, and in telephoning editors and columnists telling them what they should write, and in button-holing radio types and telling them what they should say on the air, and telegraphing members of the legislature and telling them what they should do about the issue of the day.

In fact, this Indignant Citizen not only qualified as the most indignant of all indignant citizens, he was possibly the busiest indignant citizen in history.

Thus, when voting day rolled around, you can understand why this Indignant Citizen stayed home while other citizens were out exercising their franchise.

He had been much, much too busy being indignant to register, so his name was not on the voters' list, and he could not vote.

Moral: Vote Up or Shut Up.

In all seriousness, I believe the most important days of the pre-election period are those which end at midnight, Tuesday.

Because of the short interval between announcement of the election and election day, you have only a matter of hours left in which to get your name on the voters' list.

Please don't make the mistake of thinking your name is automatically on the list.

Make sure. Take the few minutes required to visit the Gordon Street registration office—near the Vancouver Island Coach Lines terminal—or the registration office in your district. You can be sure members of highly-organized political parties will be on the list.

Get your name there, too, I thank you.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Joseph James Cavanage, 803 Hillside, was remanded to Wednesday for a probation report when he was convicted in city police court of stealing a pair of $1.69 sun glasses from the Cunningham Drug store at Yates and Douglas.

Cavanage said he had been drinking for two or three days and remembered nothing about the incident.

A two-car collision at Blanshard and Pandora Aug. 6 resulted in a $35 fine being imposed in city police court Friday on John W. Shaw, 315 Langford, for careless driving.

Dr. Anne Steel remained in a coma in St. Joseph's Hospital today, almost 16 weeks after she was injured in a fall from a horse.

Dr. Steel, 36, a general practitioner in Victoria, suffered a fractured skull May 6 in the accident on a mountain near Oliver in the Okanagan.

A special sitting of Esquimalt police court Friday imposed a $50 fine for careless driving on an HMCS Venture cadet who was scheduled to leave for Eastern Canada later in the day.

He was involved in an accident at 1:50 a.m. when the car was driving veered off Admirals at HMCS Naden and hit a power pole.

Thelma V. Barber, 335 Stewart, driver of a car which knocked over a lamp standard on Quadra near North Park Aug. 6, was fined $35 in city police court Friday for careless driving.

If holder of the ticket stub will mail it to Victoria Theatre Guild, Box 1061, including return address, the season pass will be mailed to the winner.

ELECTION NOTES

Most registration stations in the Greater Victoria area are staying open in the evenings to cope with the rush of voters trying to get their names on the electoral roll before the Tuesday midnight deadline.

The main registration office at 910 Gordon Street, Victoria, was open till nearly midnight Friday.

Registrars say they can hardly cope with the rush.

Similkameen Liberal Association fears that some working people in the riding will not qualify as voters before the Tuesday deadline.

They sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, which reads: "Urgently request government agent's office at Penticton remain open Monday and Tuesday evening, Aug. 20 and 21, to accommodate voters' list registration of workers unable to register during daytime."

Liberal leader Arthur Laing has declined to be a candidate in the Yale constituency.

"I shall run in Point Grey, which is my home," Mr. Laing said.

Ald. Don Smith, Social Credit candidate for Victoria city, will speak at a meeting of Victoria Social Credit Association in the K of P Hall, Cormorant street, Monday at 8 p.m.

The two other candidates, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and Mrs. Lydia Arsen, members of the last legislature, will also speak.

The B.C. government's $28 homeowners' "bonus" will not be subject to income tax, federal tax officials said Thursday.

The bonus is one of the main planks in the Social Credit campaign.

Saanich Liberals will nominate their candidate at a meeting in Liberal headquarters, 1322 Government street, next Friday at 8 p.m.

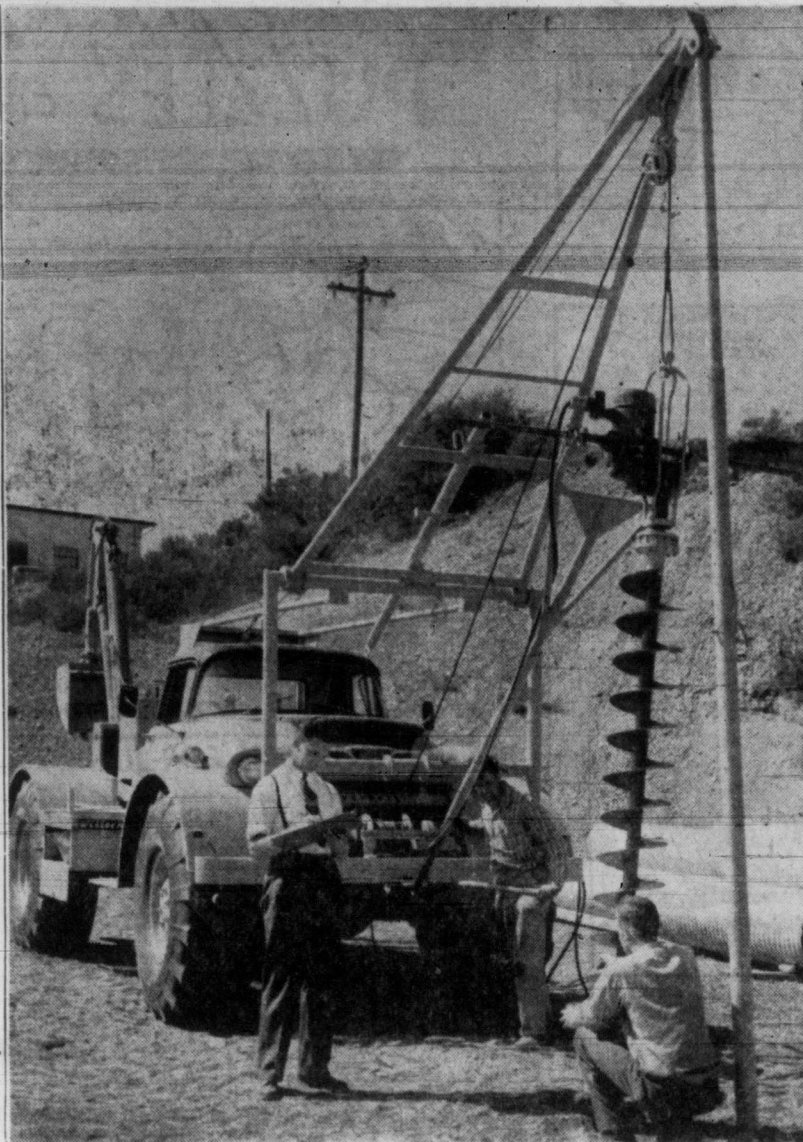

With the deadline four days away, only about 2,700 voters had registered Friday in the new electoral district of North Peace, it was reported from Fort St. John.

Premier Bennett made a surprise appearance Friday night at a nominating convention which named Rev. Charles Parker, Social Credit candidate for the Cowichan-Newcastle riding.

The premier, who interrupted a fishing trip to appear, announced the provincial government next session will enact legislation affecting the $28 reduction in property taxes. He estimated the reduction will cost the government $8,000,000.

William Moore, CCF MLA for Comox, says it takes eight days to get a letter from Comox to the northern section of the riding and there are 10,000 voters in the northern section.

"How can those who are not on the list hope to get registered by next Tuesday?" he asks.

Saanich SC Nomination Like Bit Out of Dickens

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Scenes from Dickens' hilarious "Pickwick Papers" sprang to life at a stormy, out-of-control meeting of Saanich Social Crediters at Lake Hill hall Friday night.

It was the Eatonsville election come true, with angry constituents leaping up and down in their chairs shouting "Order," "Out of order," "Sit down," "Go home," "Shut up," "Put him out," "Shame," and—"Don't you dare touch me, Mr.—"

The last exclamation came from a woman, who shouted hysterically when a Social Credit official laid a restraining hand on her shoulder as she was yelling at the chairman and waving her handbag.

The official, intimidated by this "Don't touch me" publicity, jerked his hand away as if it had been touching a hot stove.

Emerging from chaos, John D. Tisdalle, the previous MLA for Saanich, was unanimously renominated as candidate in the Sept. 19 election, defeating J. Whitworth Stanbury, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Social Credit League, and James Roberts, unsuccessful federal Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich in 1953.

Most of the hub-bub ensued from a woman's demand that Mr. Tisdalle should give a "yes or no" answer to her question: "Am I entitled to vote?"

REFUSED TO SIT

The woman, Mrs. Cora Pederson, of 4162 Wilkinson Road, refused to sit down when Mr. Tisdalle told her the case had been referred to the credentials committee.

She continued demanding a "yes or no" answer and a number of people in the hall shouted with her. The majority of Social Crediters in the crowded hall tried to shout them down and uproar followed.

Chairman C. Smalley vainly pounded the table with his gavel but the uproar continued for nearly 10 minutes.

Confusion broke out earlier when one of B.C. Social Credit officers, Mr. Stanbury, made an excited speech in support of his candidature for the nomination.

Mr. Stanbury said: "Why am I asking for your support? I have been for 25 years in the biggest banking house in Canada. They pay me $45,000 a year to enjoy it."

"A lot of you people down there probably don't make that kind of dough. You may say what does that so-and-so up there know about our problems. Well, I am living that kind of life because I know the score . . . I know the score . . ."

Mr. Stanbury got no further. A man at the back of the hall stood up and said: "Mr. Chairman, I move we proceed with the balloting."

Mr. Tisdalle was then renominated as candidate with a majority vote. He shook hands with Mr. Roberts, the other contender for nomination with Mr. Stanbury, and said: "Mr. Roberts made the best nominating speech for me I have ever heard."

Mr. Tisdalle called for unity and a "united front" in the march to victory.

"I urge you to do away with all divisions in our ranks and band yourselves together as our premier told us. Remember Social Credit is bigger than the individual; a philosophy as much as a political creed. Let us unite and go forward to victory."

"Those who criticize but have no heart to help are useless to our cause. We now have an experienced organization that is second to none in all Canada. I appeal to you to rally behind it and bring in all the new Social Crediters you can."

"Remember Saanich is the fastest growing rural constituency in B.C."

Chief Ross said he suspected a "white organization" which is campaigning for a national flag for Canada, assisted Chief Assu to design the flag.

He explained that no Indian would have chosen the color green or the symbol of the maple leaf for a flag.

"Our colors are red, black and brown," he said. "Our chief symbols are Thunderbird, the beaver or the wolf."

NEVER CONSULTED

"In my opinion the flag is cheap," said Chief Ross. "Songhees bands and other tribes were never consulted as to the design for the flag."

A meeting, the chief said, would be held to discuss the Indian flag question.

The chief said he wanted to make it clear to white people that while he favored a suitable Indian flag, he was not against retaining the Union Jack in a Canadian flag.

Churches Prepared If Province Votes On Sunday Sport

Native Indian Flag Proposal Sparks Battle

South Vancouver Island Indians are on the warpath against a group of Indians who adopted a "native national flag" to represent the Indian race across Canada.

Chief Percy Ross of the Songhees Indian reserve said Island Indian bands are against the flag adopted last month by a group of natives at a ceremony held at Little Bear River, Johnstone Strait, because it isn't Indian in design.

The chief said a large number of native bands will fight against the adoption of the flag.

The flag adopted by the northern Indian group, under the leadership of Chief Frank Assu of Cape Mudge, is diagonal from upper outer corner to the lower inner corner to the staff. The lower half is bright red and the upper half is bright green upon which is embossed a golden maple leaf.

SUSPECTS WHITES

Chief Ross said he suspected a "white organization" which is campaigning for a national flag for Canada, assisted Chief Assu to design the flag.

He explained that no Indian would have chosen the color green or the symbol of the maple leaf for a flag.

"Our colors are red, black and brown," he said. "Our chief symbols are Thunderbird, the beaver or the wolf."

NEVER CONSULTED

"In my opinion the flag is cheap," said Chief Ross. "Songhees bands and other tribes were never consulted as to the design for the flag."

A meeting, the chief said, would be held to discuss the Indian flag question.

The chief said he wanted to make it clear to white people that while he favored a suitable Indian flag, he was not against retaining the Union Jack in a Canadian flag.

Plebiscite Would Spark Stepped-Up Campaign

Spokesmen for church groups indicated today they are ready to step up their fight against Sunday sport if the B.C. government takes the issue to the people in next month's provincial election.

Religious spokesmen re-emphasized their opposition to Sunday sport in the wake of an unofficial report that B.C. electors might have a chance to vote on it.

The report said the government was considering holding a province-wide plebiscite on the question at the Sept. 19 election.

Rev. H. T. Allen, B.C. secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, said the organization "naturally doesn't want the extra burden" of the possible plebiscite.

He said if the government decides to hold a plebiscite, there was "a very great certainty" that LDA would contest it.

NO REAL DEMAND

Rev. Allen added, however, members of his group "presume there is not a very real demand" for such a province-wide Sunday sport vote.

Vancouver residents have already voted for Sunday sport in a local plebiscite.

'Suspicious' Fire Thought Set by Yeggs

Motive for a "suspicious" fire in the offices of a Victoria bottling firm is sought today by city detectives and a provincial fire marshal's investigator.

The blaze, which caused between $2,000 and $3,000 damage, is believed to have been set by thieves who entered the Goodwill Bottling Co. Ltd., 35 Erie, early Friday.

Owen Jones of the provincial fire marshal's office at Vancouver, said today it has not been determined if arson was involved.

There are no suspects, he said. Mr. Jones said he will continue his investigation next week.

Most of the damage was caused to carpets, desks and chairs.

Nothing of value was stolen, although company president E. H. Gudewell said a number of small articles such as cheque books and keys to vending machines were taken.

City fire trucks arrived at the plant at 4:30 a.m. and confined the blaze to the offices.

Prize Pupil Scores Again

Lieutenant-Governor's medalist John Gilliland, Victoria High School graduate, has been judged senior winner of the annual job study essay competition, sponsored by the Vancouver Board of Trade and Pacific National Exhibition.

John and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Gilliland, will be guests of the sponsoring groups Thursday at the P.E. "B.C. Day at the Fair," where he will receive $250 for his essay on "Nuclear Physics and Nuclear Engineering."

The city plans to introduce the new regime with a Pacific Coast League double-header baseball game between Vancouver Mounties and Portland Beavers a week from Sunday.

Here, Rev. C. G. Mackenzie, president of Vancouver Island Presbytery of the United Church, said:

"The Lord's Day Act defines Sunday sport. When it draws a crowd and is commercial, then it's illegal. I oppose legalized Sunday sport."

LIFT GLOOM

"I've never believed in blue Sunday; I'm interested in lifting the gloom. A little organized recreation is all right."

"It is the ones who would gain financially from Sunday sport who are promoting it. It's not the people."

"We don't think that is the proper use of Sunday."

"I have no intention of selling Sunday to those people who would profit by it."

He said he was interested in seeing the Vancouver by-law put to a test.

Rev. G. R. Easter, First Baptist Church, said:

"The whole thing is the Lord's Day Act, a federal thing. I seriously question whether a province can come out and change it. If that's a federal statute it's got nothing to do with a province."

"There's more at stake than the question of Sunday sport," the minister continued.

"The law is the law. We'd have straight anarchy if the provinces took the bit in their teeth and did exactly what they want. That's what precipitated the U.S. civil war."

ASK The TIMES

Q.—I came across the term "velocity dollars" in an old newspaper. What were velocity dollars? A.B.L.

A.—In August, 1936, the newly-elected Aberhart government of Alberta in an attempt to carry out Social Credit principles, issued property bonds the basic unit of which was proposed to have purchasing power of two dollars. These were popularly called velocity dollars or hot money. Ever since the federal government took court action to protect its currency powers, neither the Social Credit government of Alberta nor the Social Credit government of British Columbia has made an effort to introduce any form of paper which invades the sole right of the federal government to control the currency of Canada.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

PIONEER consulting engineer with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Cecil Rainsford Crysdale, still with the PGE stationed in Victoria, will drive the last spike on the railway's extension to North Vancouver August 27. The ceremony takes place at the end of the line on the site of the North Vancouver station. Mr. Crysdale was engineer in charge of construction of the PGE from 1912 to 1916.

BRITISH PLANE HERE MONDAY

This is the 132-seat Bristol Britannia aircraft which will fly over Victoria at 11:45 a.m. Monday. It's the plane Britain hopes will capture much of the world's long-distance passenger travel.

Peter Masefield, director of Bristol corporation, waves here on landing at New York. Plane is on demonstration tour, and will be at Vancouver's Sea Island airport Sunday.

1. Opponents stand in a circle about 8 feet in diameter. Each stands on one leg, grasping an ankle behind him, one hand holding the forearm of the opposite hand (Fig. 1). Opponents try to force each other off balance or out of the circle without releasing arm or foot from aforementioned grips.
2. Opponents again stand in circle. This time each bends down and grasps his own two ankles. At the word "Go," opponents again try to throw each other out of the circle or off balance.

Mrs. C. J. Dowling, and her three children, John, two years old; 11-month-old Sheila and Maureen, four, came with Mr. Dowling to Victoria, where he was transferred from Red Deer, Alta. At present they are living at 2834 Henderson Road, but they are building a home, also on Henderson Road, and hope to move in before too long.

Halifax and Greenwich, Eng., have both been recent homes for Mrs. S. G. Moore, and her daughters, Kathleen, five, and Patricia, two and a half, for Lt.-Cmdr. Moore was stationed in Nova Scotia until nine months ago when he and his family travelled to England, where he took a staff course at the Royal Naval College at Greenwich. The family came to Victoria early in July and Lt.-Cmdr. Moore is now officer-in-charge at Seaward Defence Base at Colwood. They moved into their own home, 2984 Oakdowne, at the beginning of this month.

New Families in Victoria

This summer many more young families have come to Victoria to make their homes. They will add much to the city's rapidly growing circle of family life.

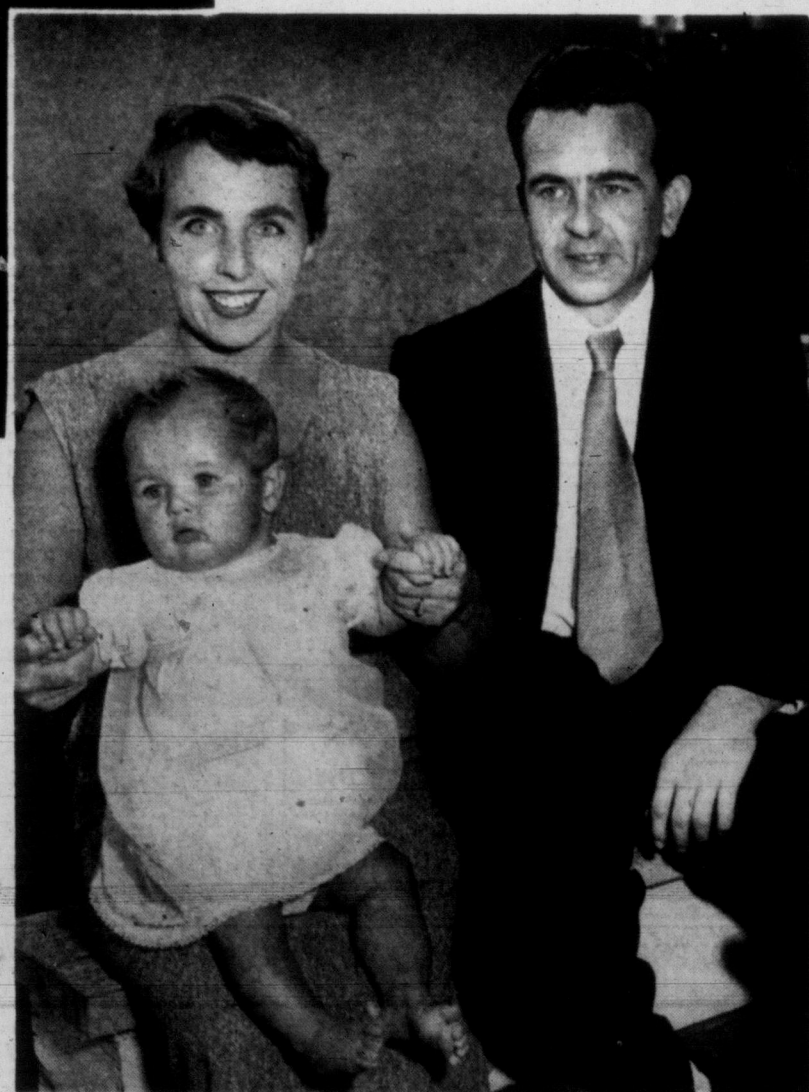

Mrs. H. Welbourn with her husband and two daughters, Ada, centre, and Shirley, came from Keremeos, B.C., recently and will make their future home in Victoria. Ada will enter Victoria High School in September and Shirley will attend North Ward School. Mr. Welbourn a fruit and vegetable inspector, is with the federal government and prior to coming to this city was in Burnaby for a few months. The family home will be at 1244 Vista Heights.

Mrs. W. H. Jones and 20-month-old Brett came with Mr. Jones from Vancouver recently to make their home in Victoria. Mr. Jones is with the Vancouver Island Helicopter Service, and at present the young family is living at 4480 Quadra Street.

A Former Victorian in Calgary Now Television Fashion Expert

Seated in the reception room of CHCT-TV at Calgary, Ellen Reddin discusses a program with a sponsor.

Many of you will remember Ellen Keay who, until two years ago, took part in fashion shows in Victoria. Now Mrs. Michael Reddin, Ellen has a tremendously interesting job, which resulted partly from her work in the fashion field. Calgary TV station CHCT features a "Women's Show" with Ellen G. Reddin as editor Monday through Friday from 4:30 to 5:00 p.m.

Featured on Monday is Calgary Community Association; on Tuesday Ellen interviews women in the news; Wednesday, as an accomplished designer and dressmaker she conducts classes in sewing; Thursday the subject might be interior design or a practical demonstration of the correct way to exercise.

Ellen usually plans a fashion show for the adults and a story for the small fry on Friday.

A half hour TV program may not seem to be too time-consuming to some but the hours of preparation which are expended before the show is perfected for the audience, are endless.

Ellen does make time for one interesting hobby however... she belongs to a small select art group that paint in oils. She says everything she paints resembles a pineapple sundae but in this pastime she finds perfect relaxation from her otherwise hectic life.

Ellen Reddin was born in Regina and was educated at St. Joseph's School, Sacred Heart Academy and Commercial High School in the Queen City.

She was employed in Regina from 1940 until 1946 then went overseas where she joined the British Control Commission in Germany as a personal assistant to C. B. Dyson then British Control Adviser to Germany. In 1948 she transferred to the Joint Export Import Agency which handled all exports and imports in the British sector of Berlin.

Returning to Canada in 1950 she came to Victoria where she was employed in sales promotion and advertising with the Hudson Bay Company. While living here Ellen was a member of The Queen Alexandra Sorority Junior League and devoted much time to charitable work. In May 1952 Ellen moved to Calgary where she was employed by several oil companies before becoming women's editor of CHCT in February 1956. She was married in October.

1954 to Michael Reddin, an engineer with Richfield Oil Corporation.

On my way to Montreal last month the train was in Calgary for a half hour and Ellen came down to the station for a visit with me. She was reluctant to say that she was making a great success of her job but from her studio I hear that she has a "terrific" Hooper rating and gets as many as 525 letters from viewers in a week.

So who can tell... if you are interested in fashion... after all, we are going to have a TV station, you know.

At no other time does personality and good grooming pay such big dividends as when looking for a job or being interviewed for one. By this I do not mean that a well turned ankle makes up for skill. Reputable firms are scared to death by this approach.

Nevertheless, many young women fail to get jobs they had set their hearts on because of poor grooming. Maybe it was poorly cared for fingernails, or a slip that showed a dirty collar, or shoes which needed polishing. The modern office is streamlined in efficiency and in appearance and the dowdy looking woman does not have a chance.

Naturalness is always an asset in social life, at home and in the office. Don't try to pose. Be yourself. In modern competition it takes brains, honesty, enthusiasm, good grooming and special training. Many capable people have missed the job for which they were fitted by training and temperament because of some one attribute which struck the boss as impossible. It may have been careless grooming, a bad breath, poor posture or self-consciousness which caused the downfall.

Don't be foolishly sabotaged by legs that cry for depilatories, by slumping posture, underarm odor or by overweight.

Genuine leather makes a grand appearance in new furniture. It appears widely on more expensive furniture items.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A friend of mine is head of an employment agency and she often has mentioned her experiences in working with people. If you could hear her talk you would understand the importance of good grooming when you look for a job (and after you get one, too).

At no other time does personality and good grooming pay such big dividends as when looking for a job or being interviewed for one. By this I do not mean that a well turned ankle makes up for skill. Reputable firms are scared to death by this approach.

Nevertheless, many young women fail to get jobs they had set their hearts on because of poor grooming. Maybe it was poorly cared for fingernails, or a slip that showed a dirty collar, or shoes which needed polishing. The modern office is streamlined in efficiency and in appearance and the dowdy looking woman does not have a chance.

Naturalness is always an asset in social life, at home and in the office. Don't try to pose. Be yourself. In modern competition it takes brains, honesty, enthusiasm, good grooming and special training. Many capable people have missed the job for which they were fitted by training and temperament because of some one attribute which struck the boss as impossible. It may have been careless grooming, a bad breath, poor posture or self-consciousness which caused the downfall.

Don't be foolishly sabotaged by legs that cry for depilatories, by slumping posture, underarm odor or by overweight.

Don't Let Memories Wreck Your Marriage

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Imagination can play havoc with one's happiness and that is what is happening to the young wife who wrote:

(Q) — "Three years ago, I was engaged to a young man and we had made our plans to be married. We had a quarrel and I told him I never wanted to see him again. He gave up his job, left town, and I have never seen him since that day we quarreled. I realized that I loved him very much, wrote him letters and asked him to forgive me, but he never answered my letters. Last winter, I was married to a very fine young man but I am constantly wondering what my former fiancé is doing, whether he has married someone else, what life would have been like for me if I hadn't quarreled with him, etc. I think my husband senses that I do not love him as much as he loves me, but he doesn't know anything about my former fiancé except that we quarreled and broke our engagement. I don't want to wreck my marriage but I don't know how to control my memories of my former fiancé. What can I do?" — M.K.

(A) — The only way to control your memories is to control your imagination. You have allowed yourself to glorify this former fiancé to the point where he is a combination hero-martyr in your eyes and, as a result, your memories of him are becoming distorted out of all proportion.

Now your job is to analyze the memories you have of him to see which are true and which are imaginary. If he were the wonderful person you remember him to be, would he be so cruel as to ignore your letters asking him to forgive you? Or, would he have packed his bag and gone away just because of a lovers' quarrel?

There are many memories. I am sure, of the different experiences you had with this man that likewise need a thorough airing so that they can be analyzed in a critical fashion. Do this to them and, by the time you finish, I can guarantee that the memory of the hero-martyr you now have will quickly be replaced by a memory of a very mediocre man, probably one that is far inferior to your present husband. Once this happens, you will find it quite easy to put the memories out of your mind and give your full attention and love to your husband.

Marion Gibbs Wed Today In England

A wedding of interest in Victoria and on the mainland was solemnized quietly this morning in St. Stephen's Parish Church, Hampstead, London, Eng., when Marion Elizabeth Gibbs, younger daughter of P. A. Gibbs, M.L.A., and Mrs. Gibbs, 773 Island Road, Oak Bay, exchanged vows with John Joseph Camburn, second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. N. Camburn, Ilford, Essex, Eng.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, W. Howard Thomas of Cardiff, South Wales, and her bridesmaid was her cousin, Miss Margaret Thomas, also of Cardiff.

Rev. W. J. Phillips officiated at the ceremony, after which a reception was held at Swiss Cottage, Lyndhurst Terrace, Hampstead.

Mr. and Mrs. Camburn left for a honeymoon in Cornwall and Somerset and will live in Essex, Eng.

Naida McLaughlin Lovely Bride In Naval Ceremony at Cathedral

One of summer's loveliest weddings took place today in Christ Church Cathedral, when Naida April McLaughlin, became the bride of Lieut. (E) Peter Vivian Reader, RCN, in a full dress naval ceremony. The bride, on the arm of her stepfather, Walter Bytolan, was led to the altar by a procession of little choir boys and the verger, and was followed by an entourage of four attendants. She was radiantly lovely in her gown of fine brocade, brought from Dublin, Ireland, and styled on classic lines with portrait neckline and a cathedral train. She wore a coronet of seed pearls and crystal and her dark hair was complemented by a misting cathedral veil of pure silk. She carried a graceful arm bouquet of white roses and wore a strand of pearls, the groom's gift.

Archbishop Harold E. Sexton conducted the service for the daughter of Mrs. Walter Bytolan, 369 Arnold Avenue, and Mr. J. L. McLaughlin, Vancouver, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reader, Lower Willingdon, Eastbourne, Sussex, England.

Twelve large bouquets of white and pink gladioli, large white asters and gypsophila banked the high altar, the sanctuary railing and cathedral pillars. Decorations were arranged by the Cathedral Chancel Guild.

Attendants were Mrs. R. H. Burney, matron of honor, Mrs. J. P. Jacobsen, bridesmaid, and Miss Merle Thorburn and Miss Sandra Cook, cousins of the bride. From New Westminster, bridesmaids, they were gowned alike in watermelon pink pure silk sheer, with floating, bouffant skirts and classic necklines. Their picture hats which matched their gowns were touched with floral sprays at the crowns and they carried cascade bouquets of white Ester Reed daisies.

The choir boys sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and the "25th Psalm." Final hymn was "We Lift Our Hearts." A naval guard of honor with unsheathed swords formed an archway for the newlyweds as they left the cathedral.

Guests were received at the reception in Olde England Inn, by Mrs. Bytolan, wearing a gown of pure silk Swiss brocade in aquamarine shade. It was a courtier design with décolletage neckline and flowing train. Her model hat matched her gown and she wore a corsage of orchids. Cmdr. and Mrs. E. Revem stood proxy for the groom's parents.

The floral theme of white and pink gladioli and gypsophila was repeated in decorations at the reception and the bride's table was arranged with two large bouquets of white Ester Reed daisies and a garland of white stocks was looped from them through the candelabra and around the base of the wedding cake. Presiding at the table were Mrs. J. S. Thorburn and Mrs. L. C. Cook, aunts of the bride. Toast to the bride was proposed by George W. Martin.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride donned a French model suit in courtier design with model hat of orchid plush velvet and matching orchid kid gloves. Her shoes and bag were navy and she wore a white orchid corsage.

Lieut. and Mrs. Reader will live at Catherine Court, 902 Gorge road east.

Sterling-Petrini Vows Said in First United

A full-length gown of fine white lace and nylon net dotted with rhinestones was worn by Miss Josephine Petrini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Petrini, 637 Dominion road, when she became the bride of PO Clayton William Sterling, HMCS Naden, in First United Church, Friday evening. The gown was styled with bouffant skirt of the net with a circular tier of lace. A lace jacket topped the bodice. The bride's chapel veil of illusion net was held by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and red roses.

Rev. A. I. Higgins conducted the double-ring ceremony and traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. J. Roberto Wood. During signing of the register, J. Roberto Wood sang, "Through the Years." Tall standard baskets of summer flowers were placed at the front of the church and clusters of white gladioli and heather marked pews.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Hugh Fletcher, sister of the bride, and bridesmatron was Mrs. Harold Petrini, a sister-in-law. Both wore gowns of taffeta in full-length and wreaths of flowers in their hair, in shades of blue and mauve, respectively. Their bouquets were in lighter tones. Little Miss Baverley Sterling, niece of the groom, was flower girl, wearing a frock of apple green taffeta, ankle length, with matching poke bonnet and carrying a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas.

PO Ralph McLean was best man and Albert Petrini and PO Donald Hepburn were ushers. At a reception in the Boilermakers' Hall, Esquimalt road, Hugh Fletcher, brother-in-law of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness. Assorted summer flowers decked the hall and the couple cut a three-tier wedding cake set in mauve tulle and flanked by white candles in silver holders.

For a honeymoon Up-Island, the bride chose a going away suit of light blue with pink accessories and rhinestone brooch. Her corsage was of pink roses.

PO and Mrs. Sterling will live at 1321 Sussex street.

Couple Married Today In HMCS Naden Chapel

Chapel in HMCS Naden was the scene of a summer afternoon wedding, when Velva Ines Pearson and AB Hendrik Pieter Van Ek, HMCS Sioux, exchanged vows today. Padre Dalton conducted the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Pearson, 10 Price road, RR 1, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Van Ek, Alberni, B.C.

Baskets of white and yellow gladioli decorated the chapel for the service, and during the signing of the register, Glen Atkinson sang "Because." Mrs. Thomas Dixon was the organist.

The bride wore a gown of white illusion net in three layers over satin, with overskirt of accordion-pleated net, lace trimmed. The bouffant skirt extended into a semi-train and the bodice of Chantilly lace had lily-point sleeves and mandarin collar. Her fingertip veil of illusion net flocked with orange blossom pattern, was held in place by a headress of orange blossoms and seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses and white feathered carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Carol Larsen, and junior bridesmaid was sister of the bride, Miss Valerie Pearson. They wore gowns of turquoise and mauve nylon organdy over taffeta, respectively, similarly styled with boat necklines, cap sleeves and full, ballerina-length skirts. Miss Larsen wore a large sash of matching taffeta. Their cascade bouquets were of yellow gladioli and they wore matching head bandeaux.

Little Miss Donna Lee Creelman was flower girl, wearing a gown of yellow nylon net and taffeta and carrying a colonial bouquet in matching yellow with headress, en tone.

FO Jerry Van Ek, brother of the groom, was best man and ushers were Mr. Otto Van Ek and John Van Ek, also brothers of the groom.

At the reception in the Chez Marcel, the couple cut a three-tier wedding cake surrounded with yellow tulle and flanked by tall yellow candles. Tables were decorated with mauve and yellow sweet peas.

J. B. Law proposed the toast to the bride.

For an Up-Island honeymoon, the bride donned a black cotton dress patterned with red roses, with red duster coat, champagne accessories and corsage of white carnations and stephanotis.

At noon today in Winnipeg, Man., Julia Mary Anne, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. O'Neill, 2058 Kings Road, Victoria, became the bride of Charles Glenn Moore, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Moore, Winnipeg.

Father C. Empson conducted the ceremony in St. Ignatius Church, which was decorated with white gladioli and ferns. Organist was Miss H. Burgess and Miss Rosemary Smith sang during the signing of the register.

A gown of white embroidered crystallette over taffeta with full, hooped skirt, fitted bodice and scalloped neckline outlined with pearls and iridescent sequins was worn by the bride. A rhinestone-studded Juliet cap held her fingertip veil of illusion net, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and feathered white carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Sheila Tobin, and bridesmaids, Misses Jonelle Kohnen, Marilyn Reid and Carol O'Neill, sister of the bride, all wore gowns of light green corded silk in ballerina length, styled with V necklines. They carried yellow daisies and wore matching wreaths in their hair.

SEEK LADY OF LAKE TITLE

Queens of their various districts will be in attendance at the Lake Cowichan Loggers' Sports, Labor Day, Sept. 3. They will be in competition for the title of Lady of the Lake. Shown are Anne Leach, left, of Honeymoon Bay, Mesachie Lake and Gordon River; Arlene Johnson, centre, of Lake Cowichan and Paldi, and Marilyn Waite of Youbou, Caycuse and Nitinat.

Lake Cowichan Labor Day Show Program Drawn

LAKE COWICHAN — Loggers' sports will be one of the feature attractions at the Lake Cowichan Labor Day celebrations Sept. 3.

The day will open with a soap box derby, followed by a parade and crowning of the Lady of the Lake, a title contested by three queens of neighboring districts.

Other attractions will be children's track and field sports, a tug of war, nail-driving contest, a stage show and water sports. Chief events in the loggers' sports will be log birling, chopping and bucking.

The Lady of the Lake and her princesses will be asked to attend a junior dance to be held from 7 to 9 p.m. and a dance for seniors from 9 o'clock on.

APPLY RESPIRATION

13-Year-Olds Prevent Tragedy

COURTENAY — Two 13-year-old girls discovered here Friday that even a rudimentary knowledge of artificial respiration can save a life.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Victoria (Ogden Pt.)—Nedon, Crofton—Wilhelm Torsildsen, Tahiti—Anita, Albern—Donnelly.

OCEAN MAILS (Closing dates at Vancouver) Aug. 20—Thorside, Fiji, Aug. 31—American Mail, Japan, Hong Kong, Philippines.

Working alone, they rescued an unconscious tot from the Tsolum River and revived him. Sharon Mangles and Jessie Baker, saw Larry Phillips, 2½, tumble down a steep, 10-foot bank into deep water.

Sharon dived in immediately and supported the little boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Phillips of RCAF station, Comox. Jessie rushed to help her friend and together they got Larry ashore.

The girls, knowing only a little about artificial respiration, nevertheless were able to pump water out of the child's lungs by pressing on his back and eventually brought him around.

50,000 SOCKEYE DAILY

VANCOUVER—The Fraser river is still yielding 50,000 sockeye salmon a day as the end of the Chileo run approaches.

At the peak of the run, boats were taking up to 150,000 fish a day. International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission officials say gill-net fleets will continue to take Chileo stragglers until the end of October.

Round-Trip Strait Swim For Thomas?

Bert Thomas bounced back in the news again Friday, following Cliff Lumsdon's conquest over the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Thomas, the Tacoma logger who was the only previous man to swim the strait, said Friday that he was anxious to have a match race with Lumsdon and that he was seriously contemplating swimming the strait both ways, non-stop, from Port Angeles to Victoria and back to Port Angeles.

TRAINING HARD

Thomas said, "I've been training eight hours a day and I'm in better shape than I ever was. If all goes right, I'm going to try it."

On the match race proposal, Thomas said, "It looks to me like we should have a swim. He can pick his course and I'll pick mine. We could flip a coin to see which side we'd go from."

Lumsdon, who earlier had issued a challenge of his own to Thomas, said, "Who's challenging who?"

Lumsdon added, "I have to leave for home to enter the CNE swim. But Bert Thomas knew I was in Victoria long before today."

2 Phone Projects Well Under Way In Nanaimo Area

NANAIMO — Two separate B.C. Telephone Company projects, costing more than $165,000, are well under way here.

Both projects, according to L. A. Huxtable, district commercial manager, will provide additional service throughout Nanaimo exchange.

Construction crews at present are reinforcing and extending portions of the existing underground cable system in the business area.

The underground job links up with a $95,000 project of placing approximately six and a half miles of aerial cable to Lantzville and Cedar districts.

A second project costing more than $70,000 is also being carried out in the widespread exchange area. Mr. Huxtable said the job, which covers many streets, will be completed in October.

RICH AREA

Metropolitan Toronto pays 27 per cent of all the corporation taxes in Canada.

Strait Swim Navigators Make Rescue

Two experienced Juan de Fuca Strait swim navigators, Stan Page and Bud Phillips, turned rescuers and good Samaritans Friday as an aftermath of the Cliff Lumsdon swim.

Page, Ben Laughlin's navigator, and Phillips, pilot for Bill Muir, were returning from the swim scene aboard the Shamrock and Lili Marlene II respectively when they spotted a drifting boat off Albert Head.

IMPAIRED DRIVING CHARGE

VANCOUVER — Police said a vehicle driven by Herbert L. Lundquist went out of control at a downtown intersection early Friday, mounted a sidewalk, crossed a private parking lot, smashed through a steel fence, went along the roof of a small shed, then dropped 20 feet to the ground.

Government Conference At 3 Levels

Representatives of three levels of government will take part in discussions of national and international affairs at Victoria-Vancouver meetings Sept. 5 to 8.

The occasion will be the eighth annual conference of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada. Topics to be discussed include the future of the Canadian Indian and Eskimo, hospital insurance and world health.

The conference opens in Victoria Sept. 5 and moves to Vancouver Sept. 7.

B.C. speakers will include Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director of the World Health Organization; Vancouver planning director G. Stewart Brown; Attorney-General Robert Bonner; H. F. Angus, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission; and J. Edwin Eades, chairman of the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Board.

Donald M. Cox, commissioner of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, will lead the discussion on government health programs.

Lost Fisherman Located by RCAF Air-Sea Search

COMOX—RCAF air-sea rescue officials here Friday reported a small boat, missing off the east coast of Vancouver Island, had been found.

An air search started yesterday for fisherman Jack Ives who had been missing for a week in his outboard motor boat near Qualicum Beach.

An RCAF Caspian seaplane flew from the Sea Island base to take part in the search, but air-sea rescue officials reported later that Ives had been located by a surface vessel and towed to Qualicum Beach.

U.K. Turns Down Red Suez Plan

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today rejected Russia's proposal for a second and broader Suez conference on grounds that "the urgency of the crisis" would not permit it.

Marilyn's Diary

What a ball we had out here at the Old Charming Inn Friday.

When we got home, in the wee small hours of the morning after Cliff's swim, we just fell into our beds and we planned to sleep as long as we could. Everyone was going to be very still and quiet to make sure that we didn't wake Cliff up until he had a long sleep.

Marilyn

So what happened. At 10 in the morning, there was a banging at all our doors and it was Cliff, yelling, "Come on you guys. Wake up and read my telegrams with me."

Cliff was fully dressed and loaded down with telegrams of congratulations and he looked like a big kid seeing his first Christmas tree.

We rolled out of our beds and joined Cliff in his spontaneous victory party.

But then, when he got us all up, Cliff decided he wanted, of all things, a swim. He went down to the Crystal Gardens pool for a swim and a steam bath.

While he was gone, Maria and I went for a swim at the beach in front of the hotel. It wasn't a practise swim, just strictly two girls at the beach and we really enjoyed it.

We had a big lunch with every one of our Toronto party attending.

After we had eaten, we presented John MacLean with a silver cup that Mrs. Ryder and Joan Lumsdon had bought in town in the morning. John, you know, is the Toronto Telegram photographer who went into the water to pace Cliff and stayed in five minutes.

We presented the cup to John as the record-maker for the Shortest Strait Swim in History.

John just blushed and said, "Well, it was a challenge."

Gus stood up to make a speech and said, "John, I'm sure you would have made it but you had a cruel coach who refused to feed you while you were in the water."

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd appealed instead to the 22-nation Suez conference here to agree on a set of principles for future operations of the Suez Canal and convey them speedily to the Egyptian government.

The conference, now in its third day, then adjourned until Monday afternoon.

This left the weekend clear for further backstage diplomatic talks. The delegates are trying to hammer out a compromise between the West's insistence on international management for the canal and Russia's call for a new international guarantee but leaving the waterway in Egyptian hands.

Lloyd told the conference that Britain wants a peaceful settlement of the dispute despite British military preparations.

Lloyd made it clear that Britain fully backs the four-point plan for the future operation of the canal advanced Thursday by State Secretary Dulles.

The foreign secretary's speech appeared soft in tone and free from the bitterness of previous British denunciations of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

CAIRO (UP)—Egypt plans to recruit "resistance battalions," possibly including foreign "volunteers," in every one of its cities and towns.

The newspaper Al Ahram reported that 4,500 recruiting offices have been opened throughout the country.

Bad Weather For British Soccer Start

LONDON (Reuters)—Torrential rain, strong winds and upsets provided a stormy opening to the new English soccer season today.

Hopes of a bright start were shattered for many clubs in the north of England as players slithered on sodden fields in lashing rain. Some teams were in their element, especially newly-promoted Leeds United and Sheffield Wednesday.

Both made a fine start on their return to the first division. Leeds won 5-1 against Everton. Centre forward Harold Brooks scored three goals in the first half.

Sheffield Wednesday came through a testing debut by winning 4-2 against powerful West Bromwich Albion.

Manchester United, the league champions and unbeaten at home last season, received a minor setback today. Birmingham, defeated in last season's cup finals, held United to a 2-2 tie although Manchester led 1-0 at halftime.

CROWD HAILS STRAIT CHAMP

Victoria's current hero, Cliff Lumsdon, who beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca Thursday and Friday, was acclaimed at City Hall today in the manner befitting a hero. Cliff spoke in the council chambers and received a clock from the Chamber of Commerce. With a cheering crowd in the background, Cliff and coach Gus Ryder enter City Hall, flanked on the left by City Clerk Frank Hunter and Acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold and on the right by Mrs. Lumsdon. Over 1,000 Victorians were at City Hall to greet Cliff.

MEDICAL CHECK SHOWS LUMSDON IN FINE SHAPE

Cliff Lumsdon got virtually a clean bill of health today, following a physical check-up by Dr. R. J. Wride.

Dr. Wride found that Lumsdon's only ailment following his 11½-hour Juan de Fuca Strait swim was an inflamed muscle sheath in his left wrist.

The wrist was bound up and Dr. Wride assured Lumsdon it would be healed in plenty of time for him to compete in Lake Ontario's CNE swim later in this month.

700 NAMES TAKEN

Vancouver Police Raid Bingo Game

From CP and BUP VANCOUVER—Police said today organizers of a big bingo game, raided Friday night by a squad of nine officers, are to be summoned for keeping a gaming house.

However, no charges are to be laid against the players. Police took down names of the 700 participants for nearly two hours after raiding the club on East Pender Street. Money and bingo equipment were confiscated.

Police gave no indication as to why the club was singled out for the raid, the first strike in years against the game which flourishes throughout the city.

Bingo is illegal under the Criminal Code unless staged by charitable or religious organizations with proceeds used for benefit of any charitable or religious organization.

Five detectives and two uniform policemen walked in on the game. They were led by Inspector Archie Plummer and Detective-Sergeant Ben Coultas.

Police said a large quantity of bingo equipment was seized.

'Vote for Any But Socred' CCF'er Urges in Unity Call

Members of the CCF were urged here to launch a "united effort" with Liberals to defeat Premier Bennett's Social Credit government in the Sept. 19 election.

The "united effort" was proposed by William Moore, CCF member for Comox in the last legislature, who said in an interview:

"I recommend that the progressive-thinking elements in the opposition parties should reciprocate in supporting only the opposition candidate with the best chance of winning instead of splitting the vote and a candidate in the election, said he was not suggesting a coalition of CCF and Liberal parties.

Mr. Moore, who will not be a swimmer avoided Constance Bank.

"He's out of this whirl," said th' admiral navigator, as th' swimmer avoided Constance Bank.

Voteers are registerin' protests along with their names.

Second Socred Blames 'Machine'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges that a political machine was in operation in the association followed nomination of three Social Credit candidates in Vancouver-Point Grey Friday night.

Named on the first ballot were Attorney-General Robert Bonner, MLA Tom Bate and former Conservative Mrs. Buda Brown, a city park commissioner.

They defeated four other candidates, including long-time Social Creditor Ernest Allstone, a former president of the Point Grey constituency association, who levelled the "machine" charges.

Mr. Allstone said in an interview following the meeting he is giving "serious consideration" to running as an Independent in Point Grey.

It is the second time "machine" charges have followed Social Credit nomination conventions in the Greater Vancouver area.

Last week MLA George Tomlinson of North Vancouver claimed that a machine was responsible for his defeat in his bid for renomination in North Shore riding.

In his nomination speech Mr. Allstone said he was in "full support" of the two sitting members — Attorney-General Bonner and Mr. Bate—but he urged the 148 eligible voters to "weigh carefully" their choice of the third candidate.

Retains Golf Crown

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. — Defending champion Moe Norman, Kitchener, Ont., retained his Canadian amateur golf championship here today with a smashing 5-and-4 victory over Jerry Magee, Toronto, in their 36-hole final.

Norman led 1 up at the end of the morning round. With the start of the second round Norman put on a display of brilliant sub-par golf to be 5 up after 30 holes.

Amy Near Goal; Ben 4 Miles Out

Blonde California housewife Amy Hiland was fighting her way through the turbulent waters off Race Rocks at 1.30 p.m. today in a valiant attempt to hit the Canadian shore near Victoria after entering the water at Ediz Hook at Port Angeles at 4.45 a.m.

About five miles behind her was Victoria's Ben Laughren who also dived into the water from the hook at 4.55 a.m.

Amy was only about three-quarters of a mile off Becher Bay in Sooke at press time, endeavoring to fight her way towards Victoria.

She was in the section E6 in the Times swim map and Ben in section D-8.

Amy's last strong attempt to beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca was Aug. 2 when she came within three miles of the Ogden Point breakwater after 12 hours and two minutes, 13 minutes short of her electrifying attempt three weeks earlier when she got within one mile of Victoria.

Both were reported stroking strongly, Mrs. Hiland with a smooth unbroken 52 strokes per minute.

Her plan was to hit for Victoria between the Race and the Island's shoreline.

Swimmer Honored By Civic Officials

By DENNY BOYD

Cliff Lumsdon, already hailed as one of the greatest swimmers in the world, today showed another facet of his multi-talented personality.

Speaking informally and without the help of notes, Lumsdon charmed and captivated members of the city council and guests today when he appeared in the council chambers of City Hall to receive civic recognition of his Victoria-Port Angeles swim Friday.

More than 1,000 persons welcomed Lumsdon outside City Hall.

Introduced in the council chambers by acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold, Lumsdon, wearing a dark blue suit, rose and with his hands in his pockets, spoke off-the-cuff for 10 minutes.

He said, "I have a lot of thanks to do."

"First, I want to thank God for giving me the strength and courage to complete my swim."

"Secondly, I want to thank Gus Ryder who, to me, is the greatest coach in the world. I have had Gus for a coach since I was five years and I might say, he has never let me down. In fact, he has saved me a couple of times. I would never have been able to do any of my swims without Gus."

"Then, I want to thank the greatest navigator in the world, Capt. Ellice Cavin of Island Tug & Barge. Capt. Cavin is more than just a great navigator; he is a great man."

"I want to thank Jack Todd for handling the coaching boat all the way across the Strait. He had a hard job to do but he did it well."

"If I can ever find that dog that met me on the other side, I want to thank him or her for being there and giving me the strength to finish that last couple of hundred yards."

"Then he added with a smile, 'Maybe I'll take it along with me on my next swim.'"

LITTLE LADY HOLDS UP WHOLE SHOW

Civic dignitaries at City Hall this morning had to wait a couple of minutes to greet Cliff Lumsdon, in deference to a little old lady who just wanted to kiss the Strait champion.

When Lumsdon came through the doors of City Hall for his civic reception, Mrs. L. Cassidy, 464 Garbally, 92 years old and a Victoria resident for 69 years, put her arm around the big swimmer's neck, kissed him soundly and said, "My, isn't he a wonderful boy."

"My deep thanks go to Marilyn Bell, for coming in the water with me and encouraging me. Once she told me I would finish that swim if she had to pull me the rest of the way. There were times when I wished she would do that."

Thanks Wife for Encouragement

"I thank my wife for her continuous encouragement and faith in me and I thank her for joining me out here. I also thank another little member of our family who isn't here yet."

(The Lumsdons are expecting a child in January.)

"Then, I want to thank the greatest navigator in the world, Capt. Ellice Cavin of Island Tug & Barge. Capt. Cavin is more than just a great navigator; he is a great man."

"I want to thank Jack Todd for handling the coaching boat all the way across the Strait. He had a hard job to do but he did it well."

"If I can ever find that dog that met me on the other side, I want to thank him or her for being there and giving me the strength to finish that last couple of hundred yards."

"Then he added with a smile, 'Maybe I'll take it along with me on my next swim.'"

The entire swim party, including Mrs. Lumsdon, Mr. and Mrs. Ryder, Marilyn Bell, and Mrs. Bell and members of the Toronto Telegram staff arrived by car at City Hall with a motorcycle escort at 10.15 this morning to be greeted by loudly-cheering Victorians.

Acting Mayor Pinfold and City Clerk Frank Hunter greeted the party at the steps and escorted them into the council chambers.

Mr. Pinfold said that it was regrettable that the time element prevented Cliff from attending a civic dinner and promised that a "lasting and tangible gift" would be forthcoming in the near future to reward Cliff for his swim.

Mr. Pinfold said: "Your exploit is not only one of achievement but also one of record that will at all times be remembered with enthusiasm by the people of this community. I, with others here, followed your progress and marvelled at the endurance and stamina which you displayed. These characteristics will unquestionably be an example to not only other swimmers but to the youth of our country."

Introducing coach Ryder, Mr. Pinfold said, "We would like at this time to add our sincere best wishes to you for your future endeavors and our thanks for the material contribution that you have made for the safety and welfare of young Canadians."

Ryder paid special tribute to his wife for her work with swimmers and spoke on the hysterical reporting that followed Marilyn Bell's swim.

It is hoped that Cliff will be able to attend a band concert at Beacon Hill Park Sunday afternoon at 3.

He leaves at 8 Sunday night for Toronto, where he will start training for the CNE swim in Lake Ontario, Aug. 26.

STORK LANDS TRIPLETS AT PENTICTON HOME

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—The stork carried a capacity load here Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young.

In hospital, Mrs. Young gave birth to a five-pound, two-ounce girl at 2.20 p.m., a three-pound, 10-ounce girl at 6.26 p.m. and settled for triplets at 7.01 p.m., with another girl weighing five pounds, 14½ ounces.

The young family now totals four girls. There is a two-year-old daughter, Dianna.

Mr. Young said Friday night both mother and triplets were "doing fine." He said they haven't chosen names for them.

Local Centennial Body Established

Are Municipalities To Be Asked To Give Committee Authorization?

A committee to plan Greater Victoria's celebration of British Columbia's 100th birthday in 1958 was established Friday afternoon.

All municipalities in this area will be asked to draw uniform by-laws establishing the local B.C. centennial committee as co-ordinator of celebrations and manager of funds granted for the anniversary by the provincial government.

The committee elected Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow chairman, and requested city manager C. C. Wyatt to recommend a full-time secretary after Ald. Edgelow outlined extensive work ahead of the group.

Municipalities would have voting members on the committee, picked on the basis of population as for the library board—one member from each municipality, plus one for each 25,000 population or fraction thereof.

Victoria would have four members, Saanich three and two each from Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Ald. Edgelow's idea would be to draw non-voting members from any service club or other organization which could play a part in the celebration.

Annual celebrations are already planned by Greater Victoria Celebrations Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which could be coordinated with centennial celebration into a "week-long excellent affair," said Ald. Edgelow.

Any local aspect of the centennial period could be emphasized by the municipality concerned, the committee agreed.

Oak Bay was not able send a representative to the initial meeting.

Mayor Percy Scurreh was asked by acting mayor Ald. W. F. Pinfold to invite the 1958 convention of Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to Victoria.

Premier Bennett and the B.C. Centennial Committee have sent their endorsements to the mayor, now at the mayor's 1956 convention in Hamilton.

Auto Workers' Vote Strike Approved

Victoria Automotive Workers' Union has been granted its application for a strike vote among some 250 members employed by 10 Victoria automotive dealers.

Membership voted this week to reject recommendation of a conciliation report following recent hearings.

The report recommended a two-year contract providing $1.96 this year and $2 an hour next year for journeymen mechanics. Starting date in 1957 would be May 1.

A union spokesman said date for taking a strike vote will be announced by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin, probably next week.

Union demand was for a 40-hour week with the same take-home pay as for the present 44 hours, on a basic journeyman mechanic's rate of $1.78 an hour, plus union shop.

BEDALE, Eng. (AP)—Dante, who won the Epsom Derby in 1945 and later sired winners of races worth $524,563, died of a heart attack Friday. He was 14 years old.

Portage Inlet Seen as Huge Yacht Basin

Engineering Report Backs Plans To Build Canal, Dam and Locks

Portage Inlet could be the finest natural yacht basin in the northwest, the headquarters for hundreds of cruising craft, if connected by canal and locks with Esquimalt and Victoria Harbors.

Results of Portage Inlet development are envisioned by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, who received a report lauding improvement through engineering from the firm R. Gordon Knight and Associates, consultant engineers, Vancouver.

The inlet, already a safe anchorage but difficult to reach by larger sailing craft or motor cruisers, could provide revenue to cover the estimated $1,000,000-plus needed to build a canal from Thetis Cove on Esquimalt

Harbor and a set of dam and locks on the cove and at the foot of Harriet on the Gorge.

Ald. Edgelow said toll fees could be charged to vessels using the locks and after a number of years the project would pay for itself.

Early requirement is for a full field survey to establish final design and cost.

The alderman said such a survey, which he estimated at $10,000, might be paid for by Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt on a per capita basis.

Natural Recreation Area

"It's a natural," the alderman said. "Apart from it becoming a recreational area (small boating, picnic and beach facilities would improve), if this is done it will make the upper Portage Inlet into a yacht basin which could become the headquarters of yachting for the entire north Pacific coast."

He said the inlet could develop into a storage basin for yachts in the Pacific northwest. About 2½ or three months would be required to complete a full survey of the project, Ald. Edgelow estimated.

Esquimalt council has already approved Capital Improvement District Commission funds be used to finance the survey. It approved a Victoria city council request that endorsement be given to Gorge waterway improvement as a CIDC project.

Asked his opinion of the plan, Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash said, "I think it is a wonderful idea. He has not as yet had the opportunity to examine the proposals in detail."

Ald. Edgelow said Gorge waterway would endeavor to get the co-operation of unorganized provincial territory bordering on Portage Inlet to overcome the situation of septic tank drainage into the waters. All other sewage problems have been overcome with regard to the Inlet and the Gorge, making safe swimming for the first time in 18 years.

To complete the task of pollution prevention the engineers' report said circulation would be improved by cutting a canal linking Victoria and Esquimalt Harbors, "thereby providing better recreational facilities for residents of the Greater Victoria district."

CAPT. CAVIN CORRECTS VIEW ON REPEAT SWIM

When Capt. Ellice Cavin, Cliff Lumsdon's navigator aboard the Island Challenger, said Friday "I doubt that it will ever be done again," he meant a north-south Strait crossing would never happen under such ideal circumstances.

"I did not say the Strait would never be swum again," as was implied following Lumsdon's history-making marathon, he said today.

Any future successful crossing will have to contend with complicated navigational problems, the veteran skipper believes.

Scots Cottage Housewife Entertains Royal Couple

OBAN, Scotland (Reuters)—The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret gathered around a peat fire in a little Scots cottage Friday to watch a grey-haired islander handspin the yarn for Harris tweed.

The Queen sat in the only armchair. Princess Margaret used a small straight-back chair and the Duke sat on the table in the homely parlor while Mrs. Peggy MacDonald, fisherman's wife, produced the valuable yarn from her old-fashioned spinning wheel.

Then at the Queen's request they trooped outside to see the age-old traditional ritual of dyeing the Highland tweed in a big black cauldron of vegetable coloring bubbling over a peat fire.

Crabb Biography To Appear Soon

One of the most provocative, spectacular news stories of our time was the disappearance of Cmdr. Lionel Crabb in Portsmouth Harbour during last spring's visit of Krushchev and Bulganin to England.

Prior to his disappearance, for many months Crabb had worked with Marshall Pugh on the story of his bizarre career and daring underwater intelligence activities in the Mediterranean during World War II.

It is a biography that should make exciting reading when it appears this month under the imprint of the Macmillan Company of Canada. The last chapter is to contain all known facts and best founded speculation on Crabb's last mysterious exploit.

The University of British Columbia library contains more than 320,000 volumes and houses an art gallery, an anthropological museum and a fine arts workshop.

Handsome Encyclopedia Edition Keeps Pace With Former Standards and Modern Ideas

Latest edition of World Book Encyclopedia, which has recently been issued by its publishers, Field Enterprises Ltd., Chicago, maintains the high standard which has come to be synonymous with this particular publication.

In keeping with the modern concept of visual education, World Book appears to have expanded its policy of copious illustration and the plates, both black and white and colored, are handsome, clear and astutely chosen to best illustrate the salient features of the various articles.

There are numerous maps, easily read and mostly in full color

together with masses of geographic detail. The graphic method is extensively used to present statistics, products, comparisons and leading world events.

Arrangement and vocabulary used in the articles are such that the lay mind, and adolescent, can easily cope with and comprehend such technically abstruse subjects as aerodynamics, atomic energy and so forth.

Wherever indicated, treatment is slanted to the youthful intellect and a special accompanying booklet titled "The Lookies" provides a lively key to the 18 volumes for the ever-querious mind of the child.

Choice of a career and things to do and look for month by month throughout the year are discussed and cross-referenced in another accompanying booklet.

No searching through a massive index is necessary when referring to World Book because of a system of listing related subjects as an addenda to an article. For example a glance at "Amusements" in the first volume will refer you to barbecue, circus, conjuring, drama, fireworks and television among about three dozen other items.

The publishers have sensibly appeared—sacrificed uniformity of size to a unit letter volume arrangement. Articles under A, B and so forth are complete, each within one volume. Volume 19 is a reading and study guide to the whole encyclopedia.

An impressive list of more than 1,600 authorities have contributed or edited the articles.

Of lesser importance, but a decided attraction nevertheless, is the pleasing format and quality of materials involved.

For those handsome new shelves in the knotty pine wall of the ranch house study, the set is available in elegant creamy white, imprinted with black and gold.

THE STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

Our booklets continue to make news these days. The new 5c booklet reported in last week's column was to have been followed by one containing a pane of six 4c stamps; in fact it did make its appearance in Ottawa a couple of months ago.

But the latest word is that it is to be scrapped! In its place we are having a new type containing a pane of five 4c and a pane of five 1c stamps. These will, like the current panes of 5c stamps, be printed in sixes, but the lower left corners will be blanks, to make five to a pane.

The University of British Columbia offers instruction in the faculties of Arts and Science, Applied Science, Agriculture, Law, Pharmacy, Medicine, Forestry, Education, Commerce and Graduate Studies.

Why this sudden changeover was made without giving the 4c booklet a trial has not been explained so far. Perhaps the department had a twinge of conscience at the idea of only giving us 24c worth of stamps for our quarter. More likely, it was realized that booklets containing only 4c stamps would not be very popular as they would limit the buyer to sending local mail only. With the extra cents added they are equally useful for mailing out of town letters.

It is most unusual for a stamp to be withdrawn so soon after issue that we don't have time to receive a supply at the local post office. The big question for collectors is: will they be rare? They are offered on the lists of stamps still available at Ottawa, and probably they will have sufficient supplies there to last for a while. But no time should be lost in sending for them.

BOOK TALK

Rascality Among Holy Men On India's Sacred Ganges

Perhaps it is a product of "the new India," but whatever the reason, a new kind of yarn about that part of the world is making its appearance these days. Not so long ago this space reported on The House At Adampur, a different kind of tale about Indian life. Now comes The Seven Islands, by Jon Godden, which is as refreshing and amusing reading as anybody would want.

The Seven Islands belongs to that genre of fiction which revolves around very holy and very good men who are just nicely touched by rascality. This kind of fictional hero is common enough but this is the first time I have come across an Indian one.

The Sadhu, who is the central figure in this story, has retreated from the world in the usual custom of Indian holy men. He has been so long divorced from mundane things that nobody even knows his name. He is schooled in the art of contemplation and is renowned for his great pious wisdom.

Such a man through the rigorous course of Indian introspection is now—or ought to be—divorced from all the nasty material considerations of this very imperfect world.

COMES A RIVAL
His temple and abode is on one of a little knot of seven islands in the holy Ganges. Into this group of islands comes a rival holy man who apparently is not so remote and has great plans for setting up an elaborate colony of religious men. This does not particularly disturb the Sadhu; he is far above being jealous of rivals.

However when he hears that the rivals are so ambitious that they will need more than one island and have their eyes on one which has always been a sanctuary for all kinds of birds, he swings into action.

The schemes which he concocts to rid the seven islands of the rival holy men would suggest that he has never been quite so divorced from the real world as had been supposed. They are fertile, ingenious and

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Once upon a time there was an Indignant Citizen. He was a very Indignant Citizen indeed. His indignation knew no bounds.

He was indignant at the way they were running the country. He said they did not know what they were doing, and what they were doing was nothing but bad.

He spent a great deal of his time running all around and about, telling other citizens what was wrong with the country, and how the government should run things.

He also occupied much of his time writing letters to the editor signed, of course, Indignant Citizen, and in telephoning editors and columnists telling them what they should write, and in button-holing radio types and telling them what they should say on the air, and telegraphing members of the legislature and telling them what they should do about the issue of the day.

In fact, this Indignant Citizen not only qualified as the most indignant of all indignant citizens, he was possibly the busiest indignant citizen in history.

Thus, when voting day rolled around, you can understand why this Indignant Citizen stayed home while other citizens were out exercising their franchise.

He had been much, much too busy being indignant to register, so his name was not on the voters' list, and he could not vote.

Moral: Vote Up or Shut Up.

In all seriousness, I believe the most important days of the pre-election period are those which end at midnight, Tuesday.

Because of the short interval between announcement of the election and election day, you have only a matter of hours left in which to get your name on the voters' list.

Please don't make the mistake of thinking your name is automatically on the list.

Make sure.

Take the few minutes required to visit the Gordon Street registration office—near the Vancouver Island Coach Lines terminal—or the registration office in your district.

You can be sure members of highly-organized political parties will be on the list.

Get your name there, too.

I thank you.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Joseph James Cavanage, 803 Hillside, was remanded to Wednesday for a probation report when he was convicted in city police court of stealing a pair of $1.69 sun glasses from the Cunningham Drug store at Yates and Douglas.

Cavanage said he had been drinking for two or three days and remembered nothing about the incident.

A two-car collision at Blanshard and Pandora Aug. 6 resulted in a $35 fine being imposed in city police court Friday on John W. Shaw, 315 Langford, for careless driving.

Dr. Anne Steel remained in a coma in St. Joseph's Hospital today, almost 16 weeks after she was injured in a fall from a horse.

Dr. Steel, 36, a general practitioner in Victoria, suffered a fractured skull May 6 in the accident on a mountain near Oliver in the Okanagan.

A special sitting of Esquimalt police court Friday imposed a $50 fine for careless driving on an HMCS Venture cadet who was scheduled to leave for Eastern Canada later in the day.

He was involved in an accident at 1:50 a.m. when the car

Anglican Rector Inducted Sunday

Rev. John Rogers will be inducted as rector of St. Michael's and All Angels' Church, Royal Oak, in a church ceremony Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Archbishop Harold E. Sexton will conduct the induction service. Rev. Rogers, 12 years rector of the Anglican church in Trail, replaces the Rev. John Godkin, now rector of St. Catherine's Church in North Vancouver. Local clergy are invited to attend the service and a social half-hour to follow in the church hall.

ELECTION NOTES

Most registration stations in the Greater Victoria area are staying open in the evenings to cope with the rush of voters trying to get their names on the electoral roll before the Tuesday midnight deadline.

The main registration office at 910 Gordon Street, Victoria, was open till nearly midnight Friday.

Registrars say they can hardly cope with the rush.

Similkameen Liberal Association fears that some working people in the riding will not qualify as voters before the Tuesday deadline.

They sent a telegram to Premier Bennett, which reads:

"Urgently request government agent's office at Penticton remain open Monday and Tuesday evening, Aug. 20 and 21, to accommodate voters' list registration of workers unable to register during daytime."

Liberal leader Arthur Laing has declined to be a candidate in the Yale constituency.

"I shall run in Point Grey, which is my home," Mr. Laing said.

Ald. Don Smith, Social Credit candidate for Victoria city, will speak at a meeting of Victoria Social Credit Association in the K of P Hall, Cormorant street, Monday at 8 p.m.

The two other candidates, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and Mrs. Lydia Arsens, members of the last legislature, will also speak.

he was driving veered off Admirals at HMCS Naden and hit a power pole.

Thelma V. Barber, 335 Stewart, driver of a car which knocked over a lamp standard on Quadra near North Park Aug. 6, was fined $35 in city police court Friday for careless driving.

Adolph E. Allendorf, 230 Island Highway, and Kenneth Dixon, 1941 Ash, each were fined $35 in city police court Friday after being remanded one day when they pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Victoria Gun Club will hold a trap and skeet trophy shoot Sunday at 1 p.m. at its Albert Head range.

Trophy and medal was won by Miss Claudia Spouse, 1748 Emerson Street, as national baton champion in beginners senior division, at Seattle Sea-fair celebrations.

Miss Spouse formerly twirled baton for the Moose Lodge here.

Members of Lions Clubs in Victoria, Esquimalt and Langford will attend the Lions' annual family picnic at the South Vancouver Island Rangers Park, Luxton, on Sunday, Aug. 26.

Victoria Gyro Club will take a conducted tour of Sooke Lake Lumber Ltd., with inspection of veneer and plywood plants, Monday noon. A box lunch will be served.

A Victoria Theatre Guild season ticket pass is waiting for the man, woman or child who holds ticket stub No. 41, purchased for the recent Theatre Guild garden party.

If holder of the ticket stub will mail it to Victoria Theatre Guild, Box 1061, including return address, the season pass will be mailed to the winner.

The B.C. government's $28 homeowners' "bonus" will not be subject to income tax, federal tax officials said Thursday.

The bonus is one of the main planks in the Social Credit campaign.

Saanich Liberals will nominate their candidate at a meeting in Liberal headquarters, 1322 Government street, next Friday at 8 p.m.

With the deadline four days away, only about 2,700 voters had registered Friday in the new electoral district of North Peace, it was reported from Fort St. John.

Premier Bennett made a surprise appearance Friday night at a nominating convention which named Rev. Charles Parker, Social Credit candidate for the Cowichan-Newcastle riding.

The premier, who interrupted a fishing trip to appear, announced the provincial government next session will enact legislation affecting the $28 reduction in property taxes. He estimated the reduction will cost the government $8,000,000.

William Moore, CCF MLA for Comox, says it takes eight days to get a letter from Comox to the northern section of the riding and there are 10,000 voters in the northern section.

"How can those who are not on the list hope to get registered by next Tuesday?" he asks.

Saanich SC Nomination Like Bit Out of Dickens

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Scenes from Dickens' sprawling "Pickwick Papers" sprang to life at a stormy, out-of-control meeting of Saanich Social Crediters at Lake Hill hall Friday night.

It was the Eatanswill election come true, with angry constituents leaping up and down in their chairs shouting "Order," "Out of order," "Sit down," "Go home," "Shut up," "Put him out," "Shame," and "Don't you dare touch me, Mr.—"

The last exclamation came from a woman, who shouted hysterically when a Social Credit official laid a restraining hand on her shoulder as she was yelling at the chairman and waving her handbag.

The official, intimidated by this "Don't touch me" publicity, jerked his hand away as if it had been touching a hot stove.

Emerging from chaos, John D. Tisdalle, the previous M.L.A. for Saanich, was unanimously renominated as candidate in the Sept. 19 election, defeating J. Whitworth Stanbury, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Social Credit League, and James Roberts, unsuccessful federal Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich in 1953.

Most of the hub-bub ensued from a woman's demand that Mr. Tisdalle should give a "yes or no" answer to her question: "Am I entitled to vote?"

REFUSED TO SIT

The woman, Mrs. Cora Pederson, of 4162 Wilkinson Road, refused to sit down when Mr. Tisdalle told her the case had been referred to the credentials committee.

She continued demanding a "yes or no" answer and a number of people in the hall shouted with her. The majority of Social Crediters in the crowded hall tried to shout them down and uproar followed.

Chairman C. Smalley vainly pounded the table with his gavel, but the uproar continued for nearly 10 minutes.

Confusion broke out earlier when one of B.C. Social Crediters' top officers, Mr. Stanbury, made an excited speech in support of his candidature for the nomination.

Mr. Stanbury said:

"Why am I asking for your support? I have been for 25 years in the biggest banking house in Canada. They pay me $45,000 a year to enjoy it."

"A lot of you people down there probably don't make that kind of dough. You may say what does that so-and-so up there know about our problems. Well, I am living that kind of life because I know the score... I know the score..."

Mr. Stanbury sat down. A short time later he left the meeting.

Mr. Tisdalle was then renominated as candidate with a majority vote. He shook hands with Mr. Roberts, the other contender for nomination with Mr. Stanbury, and said: "Mr. Roberts made the best nominating speech for me I have ever heard."

UNITY CALL

Mr. Tisdalle called for unity and a "united front" in the march to victory.

"I urge you to do away with all divisions in our ranks and band yourselves together as our premier told us. Remember Social Credit is bigger than the individual; a philosophy as much as a political creed. Let us unite and go forward to victory."

"Those who criticize but have no heart to help are useless to our cause. We now have an experienced organization that is second to none in all Canada. I appeal to you to rally behind it and bring in all the new Social Crediters you can."

"Remember Saanich is the fastest growing rural constituency in B.C."

Churches Prepared If Province Votes On Sunday Sport

Native Indian Flag Proposal Sparks Battle

South Vancouver Island Indians are on the warpath against a group of Indians who adopted a "native national flag" to represent the Indian race across Canada.

Chief Percy Ross of the Songhees Indian reserve said Island Indian bands are against the flag adopted last month by a group of Indians at a ceremony held at Little Bear River, Johnstone Strait, because it isn't Indian in design.

The chief said a large number of native bands will fight against the adoption of the flag.

The flag adopted by the northern Indian group, under the leadership of Chief Frank Assu of Cape Mudge, is diagonal from upper outer corner to the lower inner corner to the staff. The lower half is bright red and the upper bright green upon which is embossed a golden maple leaf.

SUSPECTS WRITES

Chief Ross said he suspected a "white organization" which is campaigning for a national flag for Canada, assisted Chief Assu to design the flag.

He explained that no Indian would have chosen the color green or the symbol of the maple leaf for a flag.

"Our colors are red, black and brown," he said. "Our chief symbols are Thunderbird, the beaver or the wolf."

NEVER CONSULTED

"In my opinion the flag is cheap," said Chief Ross. "Songhees bands and other tribes were never consulted as to the design for the flag."

A meeting, the chief said, would be held to discuss the Indian flag question.

The chief said he wanted to make it clear to white people that while he favored a suitable Indian flag, he was not against retaining the Union Jack in a Canadian flag.

PIONEER consulting engineer with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, Cecil Rainsford Crysdale, still with the PGE stationed in Victoria, will drive the last spike on the railway's extension to North Vancouver August 27.

The ceremony takes place at the end of the line on the site of the North Vancouver station. Mr. Crysdale was engineer in charge of construction of the PGE from 1912 to 1916.

Plebiscite Would Spark Stepped-Up Campaign

Spokesmen for church groups indicated today they are ready to step up their fight against Sunday sport if the B.C. government takes the issue to the people in next month's provincial election.

Religious spokesmen re-emphasized their opposition to Sunday sport in the wake of an unofficial report that B.C. electors might have a chance to vote on it.

The report said the government was considering holding a province-wide plebiscite on the question at the Sept. 19 election.

Rev. H. T. Allen, B.C. secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, said the organization "naturally doesn't want the extra burden" of the possible plebiscite.

He said if the government decides to hold a plebiscite, there was "a very great certainty" that LDA would contest it.

NO REAL DEMAND

Rev. Allen added, however, members of his group "presume there is not a very real demand" for such a province-wide Sunday sport vote.

Vancouver residents have already voted for Sunday sport in a local plebiscite.

'Suspicious' Fire Thought Set by Yeggs

Motive for a "suspicious" fire in the offices of a Victoria bottling firm is sought today by city detectives and a provincial fire marshal's investigator.

The blaze, which caused between $2,000 and $3,000 damage, is believed to have been set by thieves who entered the Goodwill Bottling Co. Ltd., 35 Erie, early Friday.

Owen Jones of the provincial fire marshal's office at Vancouver, said today it has not been determined if arson was involved.

There are no suspects, he said. Mr. Jones said he will continue his investigation next week.

Most of the damage was caused to carpets, desks and chairs.

Nothing of value was stolen, although company president E. H. Gudewill said a number of small articles such as cheque books and keys to vending machines were taken.

City fire trucks arrived at the plant at 4:30 a.m. and confined the blaze to the offices.

Prize Pupil Scores Again

Lieutenant-Governor's medalist John Gilliland, Victoria High School graduate, has been judged senior winner of the annual job study essay competition, sponsored by the Vancouver Board of Trade and Pacific National Exhibition.

John and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Gilliland, will be guests of the sponsoring groups Thursday at the P.E. "B.C. Day at the Fair," where he will receive $250 for his essay on "Nuclear Physics and Nuclear Engineering."

The city plans to introduce the new regime with a Pacific Coast League double-header baseball game between Vancouver Mounties and Portland Beavers a week from Sunday.

Here, Rev. C. G. Mackenzie, president of Vancouver Island Presbytery of the United Church, said:

"The Lord's Day Act defines Sunday sport. When it draws a crowd and is commercial, then it's illegal. I oppose legalized Sunday sport."

LIFT GLOOM

"I've never believed in blue Sunday; I'm interested in lifting the gloom. A little organized recreation is all right."

"It is the ones who would gain financially from Sunday sport who are promoting it. It's not the people."

"We don't think that is the proper use of Sunday."

"I have no intention of selling Sunday out to those people who would profit by it."

He said he was interested in seeing the Vancouver by-law put to a test.

Rev. G. R. Easter, First Baptist Church, said:

"The whole thing is the Lord's Day Act, a federal thing. I seriously question whether a province can come out and change it. If that's a federal statute, it's got nothing to do with a province."

"The law is the law. We'd have straight anarchy if the provinces took the bit in their teeth and did exactly what they want. That's what precipitated the U.S. civil war."

ASK The TIMES

Q.—I came across the term "velocity dollars" in an old newspaper. What were velocity dollars? A.B.L.

A.—In August, 1936, the newly-elected Alberta government of Alberta in an attempt to carry out Social Credit principles, issued prosperity bonds the basic unit of which was proposed to have purchasing power of two dollars. These were popularly called velocity dollars or hot money. Ever since the federal government took court action to protect its currency powers, neither the Social Credit government of Alberta nor the Social Credit government of British Columbia has made an effort to introduce any form of paper which invades the sole right of the federal government to control the currency of Canada.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

BORDER LANDS

How many of the following states are neighbors, that is, border on each other?

1. New York-Ohio
2. California-Utah
3. Texas-Louisiana
4. Virginia-Maryland
5. Florida-Alabama
6. Montana-South Dakota
7. New Mexico-Nevada
8. Iowa-Indiana

ENIGMATIC VERSE

Formed long ago, yet made today,
I'm most disturbed while others sleep;
What none would like to give away,
Yet no one likes to keep.
What am I? Can you guess what the above lines describe in enigmatic form?

RIDDLES

What man can raise things by the ton without lifting them?

TONGUE TWISTING

Sizzling suns shone on six sizable seashells.

1. Opponents stand in a circle about 8 feet in diameter. Each stands on one leg, grasping an ankle behind him, one hand holding the forearm of the opposite hand (Fig. 1). Opponents try to force each other off balance or out of the circle without releasing arm or foot from aforementioned grips.
  2. Opponents again stand in circle. This time each bends down and grasps his own two ankles. At the word "Go," opponents again try to throw each other out of the circle or off balance.
- More than two persons can compete by making the circle larger and changing the rules so that it's a case of every man for himself.

BOARDING HOUSE

ONE DARK NIGHT, HUGO, I WAS RACING FROM ST. ANDREWS AROUND THE FIRTH OF FORTH TO EDINBURGH. SUDDENLY THERE LOOMED A STRAY COW--VEERING MY PIERCE ARROW, I--

IS HE TALKING OR GRUNTING?--I CAN'T HEAR IT BUT HE'S THE ONE ENJOYS HIS OWN VOICE MOST ANYWAY!

ONLY 13 MORE LAPS AND HE'S AS COCKY AS A TRUCKER LEADING A SUNDAY PARADE UPHILL!

YEAH, BUT IT'S ALWAYS AT THE PAY-OFF HE GETS HIS COAT--TAIL CAUGHT IN A REVOLVING DOOR!

NICE HAVING SOMEONE TO TALK TO, HUGO.

Marlene 2 Up in Golf Final

WINNIPEG (CP)—Marlene Stewart of Ponthill, Ont., was two up on Pat Lesser of Seattle after 27 holes today in their 36-hole Canadian women's open golf championship final at Nakwa Country Club.

U.K. Marksman Wins Gold Medal

Ti-Cats Sign Knox, UCLA Star

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)—Whip-armed Ronnie Knox, the former UCLA quarterback, signed today with the Hamilton Tiger Cats. Knox, who first rode to fame on the fast-moving tongue of stepfather Harvey Knox and later proved he was as good as daddy said, was to receive an estimated $1,000 per game, plus a $2,500 bonus for signing. Estimates placed his possible season's earnings at $20,500, among the highest in Canadian football.

Nehru Injured in Jeep Crash

BHUI, India (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru suffered bruises on his right arm, right knee and right shoulder tonight when a jeep in which he was travelling overturned near Anjar. Nehru was thrown out of the jeep.

U.S. Navy Wants Atomic Carrier

a squad of nine officers, are to be summoned for keeping a gaming house.
However, no charges are to be laid against the players. Police took down names of the 700 participants for nearly two hours after raiding the club on East Pender Street. Money and bingo equipment were confiscated.
Police gave no indication as to why the club was singled out for the raid, the first strike in years against the game which flourishes throughout the city.
Bingo is illegal under the Criminal Code unless staged by charitable or religious organizations with proceeds used for benefit of any charitable or religious organization.
Five detectives and two uniform policemen walked in on the game. They were led by Inspector Archie Plummer and Detective-Sergeant Ben Coulton.
Police said a large quantity of bingo equipment was seized.

CROWD HAILS STRAIT CHAMP

Victoria's current hero, Cliff Lumsdon, who beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca Thursday and Friday, was acclaimed at City Hall today in the manner befitting a hero. Cliff spoke in the council chambers and received a clock from the Chamber of Commerce. With a cheering crowd in the background, Cliff and coach Gus Ryder enter City Hall, flanked on the left by City Clerk Frank Hunter and Acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold and on the right by Mrs. Lumsdon. Over 1,000 Victorians were at City Hall to greet Cliff.

Marilyn's Diary

Shells Folks!

What a ball we had out here at the Old Charming Inn Friday.

When we got home, in the wee small hours of the morning after Cliff's swim, we just fell into our beds and we planned to sleep as long as we could. Everyone was going to be very still and quiet to make sure that we didn't wake Cliff up until he had a long sleep.
So what happened. At 10 in the morning, there was a banging at all our doors and it was Cliff, yelling, "Come on you guys. Wake up and read my telegrams with me."
Cliff was fully dressed and loaded down with telegrams of congratulations and he looked like a big kid seeing his first Christmas tree.
We rolled out of our beds and joined Cliff in his spontaneous victory party.
But then, when he got us all up, Cliff decided he wanted, of all things, a swim. He went down to the Crystal Gardens pool for a swim and a steam bath.
While he was gone, Maria and I went for a swim at the

STILL CHAMP

Mighty little Moe Norman of Kitchener, Ont. is still Canadian amateur golf champion. In today's 36-hole final at Edmundston, N.B., Norman defeated Gerry Magee of Toronto 5 and 4. Norman, after being 1 up at the end of 18 holes, put on a brilliant display of sub-par golf to end the match on the 32nd hole.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today rejected Russia's proposal for a second and broader Suez conference on grounds that "the urgency of the crisis" would not permit it.

Bad Weather For British Soccer Start

LONDON (Reuters)—Torrential rain, strong winds and upsets provided a stormy opening to the new English soccer season today.

Hopes of a bright start were shattered for many clubs in the north of England as players slithered on sodden fields in lashing rain. Some teams were in their element, especially newly-promoted Leeds United and Sheffield Wednesday.

Both made a fine start on their return to the first division. Leeds won 5-1 against Everton. Centre forward Harold Brooks scored three goals in the first half.
Sheffield Wednesday came through a testing debut by winning 4-2 against powerful West Bromwich Albion.

Manchester United, the league champions and unbeaten at home last season, received a minor setback today. Birmingham, defeated in last season's cup finals, held United to a 2-2 tie although Manchester led 1-0 at halftime.

Civic Gifts, Praise For Strait Victor

By DENNY BOYD

Cliff Lumsdon, already hailed as one of the greatest swimmers in the world, today showed another facet of his multi-talented personality.

Speaking informally and without the help of notes, Lumsdon charmed and captivated members of the city council and guests today when he appeared in the council chambers of City Hall to receive civic recognition of his Victoria-Port Angeles swim Friday.

More than 1,000 persons welcomed Lumsdon outside City Hall.

Introduced in the council chambers by acting Mayor W. F. Pinfold, Lumsdon, wearing a dark blue suit, rose and with his hands in his pockets, spoke off-the-cuff for 10 minutes.

He said, "I have a lot of thanking to do. First, I want to thank God for giving me the strength and courage to complete my swim."

"Secondly, I want to thank Gus Ryder who, to me, is the greatest coach in the world. I have had Gus for a coach since I was five years and I might say, he has never let me drown. In fact, he has saved me a couple of times. I would never have been able to do any of my swims without Gus."

"My deep thanks go to Marilyn Bell, for coming in the water with me and encouraging me. Once she told me I would finish that swim if she had to pull me the rest of the way. There were times when I wished she would do that."

"I want to thank Jack Todd for handling the coaching boat all the way across the Strait. He had a hard job to do but he did it well."

"If I can ever find that dog that met me on the other side, I want to thank him or her for being there and giving me the strength to finish that last couple of hundred yards."

"And now, I want to thank the people of Victoria. I am sorry that I have to leave tomorrow but if I ever get the chance, I will be back."

"I want to thank Jack Todd

Amy Beats Rips In Strait Try

Prospects brightened at 2 p.m. today that blonde California housewife Amy Hiland would be the first woman to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

She had swum through the tidal rips off Race Rocks after leaving Ediz Hook off Port Angeles at 4:45 a.m. and at press time was off William Head in the sector F-6 of the Times swim map.

It appeared that Ben Laughren, who hit the water from the Hook at 4:55 a.m., had given up his attempt to swim to Victoria, and he seemed headed for a point west of Beecher Bay in C-6 of the swim map.

Amy's last strong attempt to beat the Strait of Juan de Fuca was Aug. 2 when she came within three miles of the Ogden Point breakwater after 12 hours and two minutes, 13 minutes short of her electrifying attempt three weeks earlier when she got within one mile of Victoria.

10TH TRY
Today's swim marked the 10th bid by big Ben, who has set the endurance record in the Strait of 12 hours and 36 minutes on July 26.

Both were reported stroking strongly, Mrs. Hiland with a smooth unbroken 52 strokes per minute.

As plotted by Ben's navigator Stan Page, both swimmers caught the flood tide about 10 a.m. which was helping them towards the city. They went in on an ebb which swept them both about six miles to the west.

Ben said he'll try for a new endurance record, and will stay in the water despite what the tides may do to him.

Prediction was that it would be a long swim for both swimmers.

Meanwhile, Rudy Schlack of Winnipeg had tentative plans to attempt the strait before the Aug. 26 mass swim of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Billie Benedict of Victoria plans to leave Gonzales Point here at 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

Accused by Mother
TORONTO (CP)—Police Friday arrested 16-year-old Mrs. Lili Vlach, bride of one month to a 39-year-old man, on a perjury charge laid by her mother, Mrs. Marguita Muller. Mrs. Muller complained her daughter gave her age as 21 when she obtained her marriage licence.

MEDICAL CHECK SHOWS LUMSDON IN FINE SHAPE
Cliff Lumsdon got virtually a clean bill of health today, following a physical check-up by Dr. R. J. Wide.

Dr. Wide found that Lumsdon's only ailment following his 11½-hour Juan de Fuca Strait swim was an inflamed muscle sheath in his left wrist.

The wrist was bound up and Dr. Wide assured Lumsdon it would be healed in plenty of time for him to compete in Lake Ontario's CNE swim later in this month.

Medical Experts Open New Search For Cancer Cause

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Twenty-five medical specialists from 14 countries are converging soon on this town in the heart of Africa, seeking new clues to the causes of cancer.

Statistics produced by the Kampala cancer research committee in a conference here Aug. 24-30 may give a new lead on the disease that ranks second only to heart ailments as a killer among civilized nations.

Until recent years it was believed cancer was a disease of civilization—that peoples with more primitive way of life suffered little from it.
